50-Foot Plunge Kills Mansfield Painter

FALLS THREE STORIES FROM BUILDING ROOF

Charles A. Fox, 53, Dies Almost Instantly While Working on National Masonic Edifice.

LANDS ON SIDEWALK

Loses Balance as He and Aid Place Swing Into Position For Painting Job.

Charles A. Fox, 53, Mansfield painting contractor for the past 20 years, plunged 50 feet to his death today from the top of the National Masonic Provident building, Mulberry and Park avenue west.

The accident occurred shortly after 9 a. m., as Mr. Fox and Earle A. Landis, another painter, were putting a swing in position to work on the wooden and metal trim on the Park avenue side of the building.

Both men were on the roof of the three-story building at the time, according to Landis, who had worked with Mr. Fox for the past nine years.

Mr. Fox, who lived at 336 West Fifth street, and Landis had been painting the trim of the building since Monday and had nearly finished the job, according to Landis. They had planned to work on the windows of the third floor of the building today.

They had put the hooks which hold the swing in position over a balustrade atop the roof, Landis said, and were standing on a narrow ledge outside the balustrade, pulling the swing up to the proper position before tightening the blocks.

It was at this point that Mr. Fox lost his balance, made a grab for the balustrade, missed it and fell to the sidewalk below.

"I heard a scream, and that was all," Landis said. "It was all over

British Expected To Release Ships Easing Oil Tangle

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Oil experts believed today that at least some of the 10 to 15 tankers which Britain may return to American service would be used in carrying petroleum to the Atlantic seaboard.

Defense Oil Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes did not specify if any of the released ships would transport oil to the east coast. Other sources said the number to be put into service between the Gulf and Atlantic coasts would depend upon other defense needs for shipping facilities.

British authorities informed Ickes that their government now believed it could release a "limited number" of tankers from the British "shuttle service" within a short period "at least temporarily." Greatly diminished sinkings and other benefits of policies undertaken by the United States were credited with making the release possible.

The tankers would be some of those previously assigned to British service. Their transfer caused a shortage of carrying facilities to Atlantic coast points.

Council Sets Up Fund for Water Hunt

Appropriates $800 to Drill Test Wells for Needs of Future.

Funds to make a search for a new water-producing area near Mansfield to insure the city an adequate supply for future residential or industrial expansion were appropriated by city council at its October meeting last night at city hall.

Acting upon requests of Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and City Engineer W. C. Statler, council set aside $800 for the drilling of two test wells near the five wells in the Maxwell springs area now supplying the city's water.

Statler said that at times the city had been called upon to pump close to its capacity of 7,000,000 gallons a day and that additional water would be needed to guarantee the improbability of a water shortage.

The city engineer said that two test wells would be drilled in Clear Fork valley within a half mile of the Markley well, which produces more than 250,000 gallons daily.

Statler said that no water would be yielded by the test wells but that the testss would reveal the strata of the rock in the Clear Fork valley and would permit city officials to determine whether a permanent well could be sunk.

Evidence has been gathered, Statler said, that a favorable strata exists near the Markley well. If the good strata continues for more than a half mile, a permanent well might increase the city's supply another 250,000 gallons, according to Statler.

Even if the wells do not reveal enough to allow the building of a permanent well, Statler said they could be used to measure the water table, to determine the affect of the city pumps upon the table, and to estimate any possible water scarcity.

Council also appropriated $480 for the cleaning of the Castor and Hershey wells and $345 for cleaning and making repairs to the Markley well. To pay for new water service lines, council set aside $1,600 and another $1,500 for maintenance of the Maxwell springs pumping station.

'HOLIDAY' ENDS

16,000 Return To Jobs at 5 Goodrich Plants.

AKRON—(INS)—A "labor holiday" which caused 16,000 workers to be idle at five B. F. Goodrich Rubber company plants here, ended today, when midnight and morning shifts returned to their jobs.

George R. Bass, president of Goodrich Local No. 5 of the CIO United Rubber Workers of America, said the walkout was called in protest against what he claimed was the company's refusal to take action against two employes at the Goodrich plant at Oaks, Pa., who were charged with beating up Joseph Feineisen, a URWA organizer, and his wife.

It was estimated by company officials that $125,000 would be lost to hourly and piece-rate workers because of the "holiday."

Sees Bright Prospects for City to Get Defense Work

Admitting that the solution of the unemployment problem facing Mansfield due to the curtailment of domestic production was "not immediately in sight," R. L. Glenn, regional labor representative for the Office of Production Management, told representatives of industry and labor last night that there were bright prospects for Mansfield to obtain defense work to ease the situation.

He based his predictions, he said, on observations during a series of meetings conducted here yesterday by an OPM labor supply committee with heads of industry and labor organizations.

He addressed a joint meeting of industrial representatives, and heads of AFL and CIO unions at the district office of the Ohio State Employment service, as a climax to a series of conferences during which the committee had outlined a proposal for training workers for defense jobs.

"Solving the unemployment problem in Mansfield is not immediately in sight," he asserted. "However, it appears that the lay-offs in industry here in the future will not be as severe as was first pictured."

"Some plants here are moving heaven and earth to obtain defense work," he told the group.

Where Mansfield Painter Fell to His Death

From the top of the National Masonic Provident building, Charles A. Fox, 53, Mansfield painting contractor, plunged to his death shortly after 9 a. m. today. Fox, pictured at upper left, was at work on top of the building, about 50 feet from the ground, engaged in fastening the "swing" which he and a helper, Earle E. Landis, were to use in painting the wooden trim on the building, at Park avenue west and Mulberry street, and occupied by the Ohio Fuel Gas company and the National Masonic Provident association, an insurance firm. The dotted line shows where Mr. Fox fell, and the swing, dangling against the front of the building can also be seen. Landis apparently was the only eye-witness to Mr. Fox's fall, as there were no passers-by in the vicinity at the time.

APPROVES GIANT NEW LEASE-LEND

House Committee Puts OK on Bill For $5,000,000,000 Aid To Axis Foes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The house appropriations committee approved a $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation today with the statement that production of munitions has not yet reached the point where defeat of Axis powers was assured.

The committee reported to congress that almost all of the huge new fund could be obligated by next March 1 and that delivery of material could be completed not later than June 30, 1943.

And then, with publication of voluminous hearings on the appropriation, the members presented the first, overall picture of the lend-lease program which began with a $7,000,000,000 appropriation last spring.

"Munitions superiority must be achieved to insure the defeat of the Axis," the committee report said. "Production in the countries opposed to the Axis has not reached the point at this time to achieve this. x x x

"The battle of production must intensify and increase until the torrent of war supplies pouring from this country and the aided nations completely overwhelms the productive efforts of the Axis."

The big fund was included in an omnibus bill which carried a total of $6,159,416,229, representing a cut of $53,054,545 in budget bureau recommendations for items other than lend-lease. The largest of these reductions was a proposed item of $40,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley authority. The committee said consideration of this was deferred for two weeks.

The lend-lease fund was divided into ten categories, just as President Roosevelt recommended on

DISCOVER FIRE AT U. S. CAPITOL

Firemen Quickly Extinguish Flames Above Senate Chamber.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Several fire companies answered an alarm at the Capitol today when smoke was discovered pouring out of the roof above a corner of the senate chamber.

Firemen discovered that a section of wood bracing was burning under the roof. The flames were quickly extinguished, and little damage done. The fire is believed to have been caused by sparks from a soldering pot of workmen who were repairing the roof.

'Not Afraid', Painter's Last Words to Daughter

Told Her Not to Worry As He Departed for Building Where He Plunged 50 Feet to Sidewalk Below.

Only a few hours before he plunged to his death from the top of the National Masonic Provident building, Charles Fox, painting contractor, said to his daughter, Virginia, "Don't worry, I'm not afraid."

Mr. Fox had been handling such jobs for more than 30 years. But in all those years, his wife, Lavida, hadn't ever been able to overcome a fear that something might happen.

Sobbing as she sat in the living room of the Fox home at 336 West Fifth street today, she told neighbors who had come in to offer comfort, "Every time he went out on a job like this, I worried."

Meanwhile, Virginia, who was called home from the Weidner Motor Sales, 22 Sast Second street, where she is employed as a clerk, bravely phoned friends and relatives notifying them of the tragedy.

Mr. Fox's half sister, Mrs. Charles Swisher, was called from a meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church she was attending.

Sabotage Hinted as Train Hits Station, Killing Boy.

LANSING, Mich. — (U.P.) — The possibility of sabotage was being investigated today in the derailment of a freight train which plowed through a railroad station here, killing a 13-year-old boy and injuring 15 persons.

James R. Smith was standing by his bicycle on the station platform when the freight train struck him. He was killed. The injured were all on the platform or were caught in the wreckage of the station. Three were seriously hurt.

Coroner Harry Leadley said he would investigate everything "from sabotage on down." The train was made up of 50 cars loaded with fruit for Canada.

President Cites Panama Arms Ban as Increasing Need For Revision.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Congressional leaders announced after a White House conference today that President Roosevelt would send a message to congress tomorrow recommending changes in the neutrality act.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt and congressional leaders worked toward a decision today on what immediate changes should be sought in the neutrality act, and Harry L. Hopkins was reported taking a leading role in efforts to have the chief executive request authority to arm merchant ships and send them anywhere.

Hopkins, the lease-lend administrator, at a preliminary White House conference yesterday was reported to have expressed the view that congress should terminate immediately the neutrality law prohibitions against arming vessels and against their entry into belligerent ports or designated combat areas.

Mr. Roosevelt, too, is understood to favor both these modifications, but he indicated that he would proceed largely in accordance with the majority judgment of Capitol Hill leaders.

Reliable reports of the conference pieced out this resume:

The president and Secretary of State Hull first outlined the background of American foreign policy, and Mr. Roosevelt made clear his belief that United States ships not only should be armed but also permitted to carry war supplies all the way to British docks.

While virtually all present agreed that both steps should be

CRASH FATAL

Fredericktown Woman Dies After Head-on Collision.

Fatally injured in a head-on collision on State Route 13, north of the Mt. Vernon city limits yesterday at 2:30 p. m., during a heavy rainstorm, Mrs. Cora Chew, 73, native Fredericktown resident, died four minutes after reaching Mt. Vernon hospital sanitarium.

Also injured were Frank B. Showers, 70, of Fredericktown, with whom Mrs. Chew was riding and John Harlow Menns, 25, Philadelphia, driver of the other car. Both are expected to recover.

Mrs. Chew is survived by one son, Robert Chew of Chicago, and two grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m., at the Chew home with the Rev. G. O. Brown, Presbyterian minister, officiating. Interment will be made in Forest cemetery at Fredericktown.

Wins Long Fight For Municipal Court Stamp Fund

After a long, hard fight, Ralph Hughes, municipal court clerk, last night finally won passage of an ordinance by city council, appropriating $250 for stamps for court work.

Hughes has complained of the lack of funds for several months and his ordinance requesting the money had been hanging fire for at least four months.

Council refused to pass the ordinance at previous meetings because the bill had no sponsor to explain just how the money would be spent. Hughes had also requested another $250 for stationery and printing.

At the September meeting, Mayor William J. Locke and Councilman George Kyle gave short talks on the matter, but neither could explain why the money was needed.

Hughes said the funds were needed for stamps to send out notices and trusteeship checks to hundreds of persons. During the past four or five weeks, court employes have accepted donations in a preserve jar for stamps and have borrowed almost $50 worth of stamps from other municipal departments.

New Offensive Traps Armies Near Moscow

Battle Rages 125 Miles From Russian Capital; Budyenny Forces Reported In Danger of Encirclement on Drive Toward Crimea.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(INS)—Two fresh German battalions hurled into the gigantic battle now raging in the Vyazma sector 140 miles west of Moscow have been completely wiped out, the Soviet high command announced today.

(By Associated Press)

German armies storming toward Moscow in a great new offensive have breached Soviet defense lines, trapped several Red armies and are now fighting a vast battle of annihilation only 125 miles from the Russian capital itself, Adolf Hitler's high command reported today.

In the south, too, the plight of the Russians appeared to be growing more desperate by the hour.

Nazi military dispatches said the entire south wing of the Soviet army had been broken by a German drive which has already engulfed Ossipenko and Mariupol, on the Sea of Azov, and is threatening the Don river port of Rostov, gateway to the rich Caucasian oil fields.

German battle flags were reported within 100 miles of Rostov after a 450-mile advance from the Prut river boundary between Rumania and Russia where the Nazi onslaught started 15 weeks ago.

The crisis in Russia's struggle on the central front was admitted by Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, which said the Germans had driven salients into Red defense lines by hurling great masses of reserves into an all-out offensive.

Soviet dispatches, however, declared that Russian counter-attacks had inflicted bloody losses on the Germans in at least two salients — in the battle-scarred zones of Vyazma, 125 miles west of Moscow, and Bryansk, 220 miles southwest of Moscow.

"The Fascist command has thrown into battle considerable forces of aviation, armored troops and infantry," Red Star reported.

"The fierce battle is raging unceasingly day and night."

In a special bulletin, Hitler's field headquarters announced:

"While offensive and pursuit operations in the Ukraine are in full swing, a breach on the central (Moscow) front begun Oct. 2 has led to a new and vast series of battles of annihilation.

"In the Vyazma area alone, several Soviet armies are encircled and their destruction is proceeding irrevocably."

It was the first time the Nazi high command had mentioned the vast new onslaught toward Moscow, heralded last Friday by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's announcement that "gigantic developments" were gathering momentum on the eastern front.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the Germans were "shifting from side to side" when blocked, stabbing to discover any soft spots in

VIERECK HELD BY FBI AGENTS

Nazi Propagandist Arrested For Withholding Data In Registration.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — George Sylvester Viereck, admitted German propagandist, was arrested today by agents of the federal bureau of investigation on an indictment returned in Washington charging him with withholding information in his state department registration as agent of a foreign power.

Viereck, author and editor, listed in Who's Who as being born in Munich, Germany, emigrated to the United States in 1895 at the age of 11. His New York address is listed as 305 Riverside Drive.

A spokesman of the FBI said Viereck would be arraigned probably this afternoon in southern district court.

He is credited with having predicted the sinking of the Lusitana four days before that passenger-laden ship went down in the North Atlantic—an event many persons believe was the direct cause of the United States entering the World war 1.

'Rip' Van Winkle Attends Meeting, Yep! He Sleeps

KINGSTON, N. Y.—(AP)—Howard E. Van Winkle, 52, lives in Stone Ridge in the heart of the legendary Catskills.

(Sure, they call him Rip).

Van Winkle's ancestors lived for many, many generations in that area fictionized by Washington Irving.

(Yes, the old settlers say his great great grandfather was the original Rip who took the 20-year nap).

Last night Van Winkle, an apple grower, attended a meeting of the Hudson Valley Apple Harvesting committee. Price stabiliing problems were discussed; then Theodore Oxholm, chairman, called for Rip's opinion.

But there was no answer.

(You guessed it—Rip was sound asleep).

NEW YORK—(INS)—John Santo, one of the founders of the CIO's Transport Workers' union, was arrested by New York detectives of the criminal alien squad today on charges of having entered the United States illegally.

The 33-year-old union leader, a former secretary-treasurer of the TWU, was taken to a district police station. Police said he would be taken to the immigration station at Ellis Island later today.

Santo, long linked with the Communist party, is believed to have been born in Rumania of Hungarian parents. Details of his alleged illegal entry into America were not immediately divulged by police.

MRS. HEEKIN NAMED

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Mrs. Albert E. Heekin of Cincinnati today became director of women's volunteer services in Ohio's defense program.

Yes, There's Still a Sales Tax But Not on Federal Levy

Purchasers of cosmetics, jewelry, and furs won't be required to pay state sales tax on the federal defense tax on these articles, but they will continue to pay the state tax on the basic price of the articles, V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the Retail Merchants' association, pointed out today.

Lodde said a number of Mansfielders apparently interpreted the Ohio attorney general's ruling in voiding the double taxation yesterday as meaning that there will be no sales tax on purchases of jewelry, furs and cosmetics.

The three per cent sales tax still applies to these articles, but it will be collected only on the price the merchant would have collected before the 10 per cent defense tax was added.

To illustrate the savings that will result from Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert's ruling, Lodde explained that the price of an article with an original $1 price now will be $1.13 as compared with $1.14 when the sales tax was collected on the 10 per cent sales tax. The three per cent sales tax on the $1 purchase price is three cents. Adding the 10 per cent federal tax, or 10

NAZIS CRACK SOVIET LINES, TRAP ARMIES

Battle Rages 125 Miles From Moscow; Budenny Army Threatened In South.

the Russian defense lines.

"Thus in one sector," Red Star reported, "a large German tank column tried several times to break through our defenses, but all attempts failed.

"Then they retreated and drove in a different direction, making a wedge in our position. Fighters of the 'nth' detachment engaged the tank column. The Germans lost more than 1,000 killed. Our units destroyed 65 tanks."

Red Star said the Germans were suffering "enormous losses" for every step gained in the twin drives in the Vyazma area, where the Russians stemmed an earlier Nazi thrust in mid-summer, and from the Bryansk zone.

Soviet tanks and warplanes in a single sector were credited with destroying 133 tanks, 50 motorcycles, 10 armored cars and 250 truckloads of infantry in a 48-hour period.

On the southern (Ukraine) front, Marshal Semeon Budyenny's armies counter-attacking from the Donets river basin toward the Perekop isthmus, gateway to the Crimea, were reported in danger of encirclement by the German drive to Mariupol.

British military quarters said that if the Germans were able to maintain themselves on a 130-mile line between Mariupol and the Dnieper river city of Zaporozhe, the Red army units could escape only "by forcing their way into the Crimea . . . overcoming German forces attacking there."

Meanwhile, Germany's axis partner, Japan, sent up a new trial balloon for peace in the Russo-German war.

Domei, the official Japanese news agency, urged the western Axis powers to end the Soviet campaign to conserve manpower and equipment for an all-out assault on Great Britain.

Voicing the fear that Germany would exhaust her strength in Russia, leaving Japan alone to face the hostility of Britain and perhaps the United States, Domei declared that the Russo-German war was started to prevent any threat to the German rear and that this purpose had now been attained.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said the German and Turkish governments had jointly declared there was no basis for reports of German troops massing in Bulgaria for an attack on Turkey.

Dispatches from Istanbul quoted diplomatic sources in that Turkish metropolis as saying the Germans were moving large quantities of troops and tanks from Bulgaria and Greece, apparently to bolster the push along the Sea of Azov and replace combat losses.

Red Star declared the German generals hoped to decide the issue before winter begins, but said "their hope is in vain." Russian observers said the Germans appeared to have drawn forces from both flanks for the central push.

Successes were claimed for defenders of both Leningrad and Odessa in their long operations against Axis siege lines.

Odessa's soldiers, sailors and militant civilians were declared officially to have routed four Rumanian infantry battalions and the 75th German infantry regiment and the British radio broadcast a declaration that the German-Rumanian forces were driven back nine miles and out of artillery range of the Black sea port.

Aerial work was emphasized about Leningrad. Russians said Soviet squadrons had destroyed seven German planes, five armored cars, 66 trucks, an artillery battery and almost a score of anti-aircraft gun positions.

German planes struck at several points of southwest England and south Wales overnight and a British communique acknowledged some damage and "a small number of casualties, some of which were fatal." Bad weather over the continent blocked RAF raiding plans for the third night in succession.

Premier Mussolini followed a German lead in decreeing that plots against the state and sabotage of communications in Italian-annexed territories be punished by death.

In the Orient, Tokyo newspapers blamed Washington for what they described as the strengthening and spreading of the encirclement of Japan. Nichi Nichi declared editorially that "the Pacific situation is going from bad to worse."

The newspaper Kokumin said "it is impossible to maintain peace in the Pacific as long as the United States refuses to understand Japan's real intentions."

The concerted outbreak of critical editorials, following a long period of reserved comment, came after disclosure of the shipment of oil and other supplies to Russia from the Netherlands East Indies, which Japan hopes to swing within her sphere of influence.

Nazis Build 'Doll House' Camouflage

ISTANBUL, Turkey — (AP) — American travelers arriving from Rumania reported today that the Germans had built a "doll house city of Ploesti" about 10 miles outside the real Ploesti, important oil refining center, to mislead Russian bombers trying to destroy the refineries.

The fake city, they said, was on a scale of one-third the area of the actual city and stood only about three feet high.

It is complete to the last detail, with every refinery and all the chief buildings represented, with an accurate street plan, and even electric lights which may be left burning during the night to attract the Russian planes.

There is a miniature railroad with tracks to catch the moonbeams.

Model oil storage tanks can be set afire whenever a bomb lands nearby, the Americans said, to convince attacking fliers that they had scored against an actual target.

WHISKY OUTPUT TO BE REDUCED

Alcohol Needed For Defense, But Drinkers Can Still Get It.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Whisky production is going to be curtailed in the interests of national defense but drinking Americans don't have to worry about going dry—at least for several years.

There is a shortage of alcohol which is needed in enormous quantities in gunpowder plants. Officials of the office of production management plan to ask whisky distillers to divert a large portion of their facilities to the manufacture of high proof grain alcohol.

Some distilleries already have been approached with such a proposal and indicated willingness to co-operate, officials said.

Told Daughter Not To Worry as He Left For Building, Plunge To Death.

Virginia said her father had recently completed a similar painting job on the King building. Park avenue west, and for most of his 30 years as a painter had been working on high buildings.

Although he had had several close brushes with accidents before, none of his family this morning could remember any specific ones.

"Painting such as he did is a dangerous life," Virginia said, "and painters are constantly in danger while working with scaffoldings. They can slip or the scaffolding can slip with them."

Working with his father-in-law at the time of the accident, John Pfahler went with Mr. Fox to General hospital and then drove to the Fox home to tell Mrs. Fox of the accident.

Mrs. Fox was notified by hospital physicians of her husband's death.

OPM Urges $7,000,000 Project Be Built Near Alliance.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The office of production management today recommended immediate construction of the proposed $7,000,000 Berlin dam on the Mahoning river, 10 miles northeast of Alliance, O.

The recommendation was made by OPM Director General William S. Knudsen in a letter to Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. Knudsen also attached a report by W. A. Hauck, OPM steel consultant, who estimated the dam would assure a daily supply of 165,000,000 gallons of water needed by the eight large steel companies operating in the Mahoning valley.

"We can expect these contracts to relieve some of the unemployment which now faces us here."

Glenn said report of a survey made of Mansfield plant facilities was already in Washington and that the survey of the labor situation made here yesterday would be sent to the OPM immediately.

"With this information at their fingertips, where, at a glance officials can tell what Mansfield is equipped to handle, I feel sure something good will come out of Washington for Mansfield industry and labor," he added.

Calling for the co-operation of management and labor in the OPM's proposal to set up the training program the labor representative said:

"If we are to put the defense program over and keep up the morale of the working people we must all seek to lessen the load."

He asked the unions to register all unemployed workers with the Ohio state employment service for the purpose of giving them training in defense production, classes for which will be inaugurated at the NYA recreational center at Charles Mill reservoir.

Glenn called on industry to "lend or lease equipment and competent instructors" to assist in training skilled workers.

He said the co-operation was necessary to have skilled help ready when defense work is landed and the change over from domestic to defense production gets under way.

Earlier, the OPM committee had met separately with the AFL union leaders, the CIO union representatives, and industrial heads and laid the groundwork for the organization of a city-wide committee composed of members of the three groups to work on the unemployment problem.

Each group will meet separately and name six members to the parent body. This group will work with the OPM on matters related to industrial and labor problems in the city.

The industrialists and unions indicated last night that their respective groups would complete organization within the next week. A joint organization meeting will follow.

BUCYRUS—Plans for the annual Crawford county corn husking contest, scheduled for Saturday at the Glen Cotsamire farm west of Tiro are going forward in spite of heavy rains which have turned the fields into a soggy mass.

House Committee Puts OK on Bill For $5,000,000,000 Aid To Axis Foes.

Sept. 18. The largest was $1,875,000,000 for agricultural and industrial commodities. The second biggest was $1,190,000,000 for ordnance and stores and supplies. Aircraft requirements would take $685,000,000.

The committee's report and the hearings, while stripped of specific figures in many cases because of military necessity, disclosed:

1. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard plans to use $1,000,000,000 to feed one-fourth of Great Britain's population for the next six months.

2. While lend-lease officials are dissatisfied with the "relatively small trickle" of materials going to Axis foes, they expect the flow to increase greatly soon upon completion of the time-consuming initial preparations.

3. For every dollar of defense articles exported, 70 cents worth of other services has been rendered.

4. Secretary of War Stimson believes that the world crisis is "no less acute and indeed, if anything, is sharper" than heretofore.

5. General George C. Marshall army chief of staff, believes that there should be no tempering or delay with the lend-lease program, asserting that "the British suffer today and risked their national existence by similar delays."

6. There are no plans for reduction of the army or for suspension of the draft program—either of which, officials said, would be "tragic."

7. Officials repeatedly asserted that it would be "dangerous" to deny to Russia the benefits of the lend-lease program, even though such aid is not now contemplated.

INSURANCE MEN LOSE LICENSES

State Presses Investigation Of 'Death Speculation.'

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The state insurance division intensified its investigation of "death speculation insurance" today with the revocation of the licenses of five insurance agents.

The agents whose licenses were taken away on charges of improper conduct in connection with obtaining speculative insurance on the lives of other persons or of making false statements are Charles Whetstone, R. J. Conley, James F. Irwin, E. F. Leahy and Charles Keenan.

Investigators said thousands of dollars had been collected on insurance policies on persons suffering from incurable or serious ailments. Commonly known as "burial insurance," policies were sold in amounts of less than $1,000.

in a second. Charlie landed on his head and shoulders. No one was passing and I guess I was the only one to see him fall.

"He just lost his balance and fell off. It was awful."

Landis, shaken by the experience, clambered back to the roof and ran down the stairs to the ground floor and got to where Mr. Fox had fallen.

Within a few minutes, a crowd had gathered around the crumpled body of the veteran painter, who had worked at his trade for 30 years, and, according to intimates, had never before had an accident.

At first it was believed he had been instantly killed. However, a bystander detected a faint pulse, and an Ohio Fuel Gas company employe summoned the Geiger ambulance.

Mr. Fox was rushed to General hospital, where he was placed in an oxygen tent, but he died a few minutes later.

The report of Coroner L. B. McCullough showed that Mr. Fox had suffered a fractured skull, a broken neck and broken back.

Mr. Fox was born on a farm near Adario Feb. 13, 1888 and had lived in Mansfield for the past 30 years.

Surviving are his widow and a daughter, Virginia, at home; another daughter, Mrs. John Phaler, of Kilbourne, O.; a brother Arthur, of Akron; a half-brother, Lester, of Shelby, and two half sisters, Mrs. Charles Swisher of Mansfield and Mrs. Chester McKeen of Chicago.

The body was taken to the Geiger Funeral home, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

cents, the cost to the purchaser becomes $1.13. When the state tax was collected on the defense tax, or on $1.10, the sales tax went to four cents, making the total price $1.14.

Shoppers must continue to pay the state sales tax as before on such articles as radios, refrigerators, and automobiles when the federal tax is paid by the manufacturer.

Shoppers who have already paid the "tax-on-a-tax" on the exempted articles can get a refund if they can prove they paid the state sales tax on the federal defense tax, State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt said.

Ruling out the double taxation on cosmetics, jewelry and furs is expected to save Ohio consumers $140,000 annually, but a similar tax on other items will cost them $300,000 a year, tax authorities estimated.

DECISION NEAR ON NEUTRALITY

taken eventually, there was substantial disagreement over how the matter should be presented to congress.

Some conferees urged that for the present the chief executive request only authority to arm the ships, and then later on ask power to send them into belligerent zones. This group argued that less opposition would materialize.

On the other hand, a number of the legislative leaders told Mr. Roosevelt that he should meet the whole neutrality issue head-on with a forthright request both for arming ships and for eliminating the present combat areas.

At his press conference late yesterday, the president expressed the view that the need for prompt revision of the law had been increased by Panama's sudden decision Monday to forbid the arming of merchant ships, operating under Panamanian registry. A number of the vessels affected are American-owned.

Although there previously has been some senate talk of a filibuster against any change in the neutrality law, Senator Taft (R., Ohio), an administration opponent, told reporters today that debate should not require more than two weeks in his chamber. He said he did not believe more than four or five oppositionists would be willing to participate in delay tactics and added that was not a sufficient number to conduct a successful filibuster.

Taft said he would welcome a neutrality test on both the question of arming ships and granting them the freedom of the seas.

GREAT LAKES TO GET 5 LARGEST ORE VESSELS

New Craft Will Carry Ore For Defense From Minnesota Mines to Eastern Mills.

(By Special News Service)

DETROIT — Five great ships that will never go down to the sea are being built to join America's drive for national rearmament.

They will do their job on the Great Lakes of the middlewest—hauling iron ore from the mines of northern Minnesota to the blast furnaces of the east.

In terms of national defense the tasks of these five vessels will be as important as those of fighting ships. For today the nation is sorely pressed for more ore to go into steel for guns, ships, tanks and other weapons.

Next summer the Pittsburgh Steamship company will place these quintuplets in service — the longest, fastest and most capacious freighters on the lakes.

Today but steel skeletons, they are being transformed swiftly into living ships by the rivet hammers and hundreds of workmen. Three of them are on the docks of the Great Lakes Engineering Works, Detroit, and two others are underway at the American Shipbuilding company, Lorain.

Into the holds of each of these new vessels can be poured a capacity of 13,000 tons of iron ore. Three hundred heavy railroad freight cars, loaded to the top, can carry no more than one of these boats.

The ships will take loads like that from Lake Superior's ore docks to the eastern industrial centers once every week throughout the entire sailing season.

These five new ships represent the largest shipbuilding boom to hit the lakes since the 1929 depression threw the damper on all kinds of construction. Not a single ore-carrier was launched between 1928 and 1938. In 1938 the Pittsburgh Steamship company added four vessels to its fleet, but after that came another period of idleness.

Blueprints give the length of these new boats as 640 feet. A displacement draft depth of 24 feet, two feet more than allotted the biggest ore-haulers in commission now, will permit record-breaking cargoes.

The boats will have a 67-foot beam and will be 35 feet deep, deck to keel, normal dimensions for lake craft with their hatch capacity.

About half the steel construction of each ship will be done by welding, a process that has come to the lakes from shipyards on the coast, and which saves steel and reduces the total weight of the hull.

Despite the large size of the ships, they will ride the waves faster than older and smaller vessels. Powerful turbine engines capable of 4,000 horsepower, will turn the propellors.

CHAPTER XXI

"Don' you other folks try to come in, else I haff to bus' somebody in the face!" Jason growled his threat and meant it. He closed and locked the doors before curious ones who would have defiled Miss Millie Mayfield's home.

On her bed, Baby Doll became fully conscious. Her hand went to her head, came away bloody.

"Now now!" old Dr. Watkins was speaking gently.

"Oh!" murmured Baby Doll. She looked around, very wide-eyed. "Martin! Is that you, Martin?"

They heard her calling and Martin stepped close. He was too choked with emotion to speak, at first.

"Martin, I—I'm so sorry it happened. You didn't mean to. I—"

"D-Dorothy!"

She smiled a bit at him. "It's all right, Martin. I couldn't let you shoot anybody. I—I love you too much. If you had killed him they might hang you, or send you to prison. It was just an accident now, and—"

"Dorothy! You—you—"

"I love you so, Martin, I always have. I guess I'll die, but try not to hate me long. It was just an accident, Martin. Tell them so!"

"You love—me? . . . Me?"

"Of course, Martin. I didn't want to see you get into trouble. You made a perfectly wonderful speech, and for a noble cause, Martin. A noble cause. I couldn't stand to see you get in any trouble."

Martin took the hand that Baby Doll held out to him.

"Let her grip your fingers, son," old Dr. Watkins ordered. He was putting final touches on a bandage from the other side of the bed.

"Baby Doll, I—I'm so terribly sorry I did it!" Martin barely whispered it, but he was much calmer now. She smiled at him again.

"Don't you worry. You had a noble cause. And this was just an accident. I couldn't stand for you to be in trouble, I love you so."

Mrs. Mayfield had pressed close to Dr. Watkins, and Thad Monroe stood near with Lillian and Mrs. Haltom. Men who had helped carry the wounded girl were behind them. Dal Tower waited near the door, several feet away; he was as anxious as the others to know about Baby Doll.

"There's some pain," Dr. Watkins murmured once to Mrs. Mayfield, "but beyond that I don't think—" He went on with his work in silence.

Martin Deale, however, was the individual here who suffered most. That impressionable young man had been shocked severely by his own outburst of anger; and now that Baby Doll Mayfield lay wounded or possibly even dying, he was seeing many things anew.

For any pretty girl to tell a man she loves him is a stimulating thing. And Baby Doll Mayfield was undeniably pretty. Moreover, she was no longer a "baby doll," a fact that she herself had proclaimed often of late. She was five feet three and she weighed 109 pounds and she was almost 18 years of age She had been the Mayfield "baby" only because Lillian was four years older. Martin was conscious of all this now. Especially did he see the beauty of her, the soft shapeliness and daintiness of her there on the bed. Pain of regret was tearing at him for having fired the shot. Hearing her say she wasn't angry, but even loved him, only added to his distress. Obviously Baby Doll really did love him—him who along with others had treated her as a mere kid, teasing her but never taking her very seriously.

He held her fingers now between his two hands and stroked them with infinite gentleness, looking at her face. She smiled at him and squeezed back.

Plainly Baby Doll thought she was going to die. She had touched her head and brought away blood on her hand, and of course if one is shot, one dies! Her declaration of love, melodramatic and childish as it was, nevertheless was extremely real and everyone knew it. But in a little while kindly old Dr. Watkins sat back from her bedside and smiled at all of them.

"I don't believe," said he, gently, "that Miss Baby Doll will be in bed more than a week, if that long. The bullet just streaked across her scalp but it didn't do much harm. Worst thing is a smear of blood on your curls. You'll need a shampoo, my dear."

The others all laughed a little in sudden gratitude and relaxation. Mrs. Mayfield said, "Oh, Doctor!" and was shaking, so that Dr. Watkins comforted her and made her sit in a rocking chair.

"I'll just give you a little something for your nerves, my dear," he said to the mother. "And I'll stay here a few hours myself until everything quiets down. There's nothing to worry about."

That implied dismissal in the sick room brought other matters to a head. For Martin Deale was at the bedside and Dallas Tower, whom he had tried to kill, lingered a few steps away at the door.

Dallas, though, was first to take Dr. Watkins' dismissal. He had learned what he wanted to know anyway—Baby Doll's condition. And while he could be happy about that, he could only be miserable about the affair as a whole. He turned now to walk out, and paused in the hall to tell Jason Weems that Baby Doll would be all right. Then he walked slowly down the long hall again, alone. All at once Lillian ran out tiptoe to follow him.

"Dallas!" she called, quietly. "Wait, Dallas."

He stopped inside the big glass door. Many people were still milling around outside, he noted. In fact the number of people seemed to have increased, and their rumble of voices bore that out.

"Dallas, I—you mustn't feel badly! Not you!"

He smiled wanly, in thanks.

"It wasn't your fault, Dal," Lillian went on. "But I know how you'd feel about it because you're like that. And it's not fair! Not fair to you, Dal. Martin means well but he is very foolish. And—"

"Lillian, girl, you're certainly a—a seeing person! Thanks, more than I can say. But the fact remains, every time I come around the Mayfields, trouble starts! This is the worst yet. I butted in today. Meddling. Popping off with my mouth."

"No, Dal!"

For a long lingering moment they looked at each other there, Dal holding her hand, squeezing it a little. He smiled down at her slowly, tenderly.

"No, Dal," she repeated, whispering now. "You were not meddling. You were right! Right about—about the oil business, and progress, and the old giving way to the new. It has to be that way, always, doesn't it? Our sleepy, narrow little old town has just been shocked, Dal. We need patience, is all. I thought your speech was grand."

Again there was a moment of silence. Then Dal said, "I don't understand you, Lillian. I mean, your—your attitude toward me. One minute you—see here, about that stupid, drunken girl in the dance hall at Kilgore, I simply must make you understand that—"

"Oh, Dal, no! Forget that. I was in a pet about nothing. Sometimes I think I'm as childish as Baby Doll, or worse."

"You aren't angry any more?" Dal Tower, strong and self-contained as he was, now was quietly choking with emotion. It was the first time Lillian had even seen him so that it did things inside her.

Together they turned. Thad Monroe was approaching slowly. He started to speak but when he saw their faces and saw Dal holding her hand, he pretended to look out the glass door. Finally he did say, matter-of-factly, "I'm certainly happy to know Baby Doll isn't badly hurt. Too many things are happening. We must—must think of some way to help Martin now. He's going to be on a spot."

Two hours after the shooting on the Mayfield lawn an estimated 1,500 men were on the streets of Rangeville carrying weapons openly. Shot guns, rifles, even belt knives were visible. And everywhere there was heated talk.

The sheriff and his lone deputy, it developed, had been called away off to a far corner of the county where somebody had hijacked a wealthy oil lawyer to steal his money and his car. Mayor Scott here in town tried to keep matters in hand. He rode and walked along the streets asking people to calm down and go on about their affairs, and two or three other men tried to help him in this. On the whole, though, these few accomplished little.

When more sedate men, including members of the new Guardianship Society, tried to go in their stores or offices or homes and behave themselves, they saw newly arrived oil men outside with guns in hand. Natural reaction was to take down one's own guns, as a measure of preparedness. Next natural reaction was to go outside seeking friends for added strength. That brought both factions in the open.

All manner of unreasonable suspicions and accusations began to be voiced, human nature being what it is. Vehement talk could be started on the slightest provocation. Old complaints that had no part whatsoever in today's excitement on the Mayfield lawn were aired again now.

"Thing to do," one hot head orated in a crowd, "is gang up and tell these damned oil shysters to get the hell out and stay out! We can run this town and this county. If there's oil money here, we want it and we deserve it!"

"Yea-a-a-a! somebody shouted.

Then and there a mob fight almost started. Only the presence of Mayor Scott and two henchmen prevented it. They had their hands full.

The sheriff had been called by telephone but he hadn't arrived. By late afternoon the riot news had swept through the oil field, and immediately roustabouts and even executives out there had quit work, picked up any available weapons and hastened in to town. Rumor told them that they were to be attacked and driven out by force. They were instantly clannish.

Thad Monroe and Dal Tower had left the Mayfield home together. When they sensed the trend of things they rode around a bit in Thad's new car. Twice they were accosted by "friends" who swore they were "backing you to the limit, Doc" and that the only sensible course of action was to swing up any man who would shoot a girl.

Thad was greatly alarmed. "You are newer than I am here, Tower," said he. "I know these oil fielders. There's hot headed men enough to do a lynching about just so foolish a thing! They'd hang Martin on the slightest chance tonight!"

"You actually mean — hang him?" Dal was incredulous.

"I do. Or shoot him. A lot of scum comes in here, as well as a lot of good people. It's the scum I'm seeing now. They go crazy. They'll do anything. Matter of fact, Tower, you won't be so safe yourself tonight. You championed one side, you know."

"I'll drop you back at your car. You take my advice and lay low, and I'll go back to Martin and ride herd on him best I can. Lordy, but things have gone to pot!"

FIREFIGHTERS

WEST PLAINS, Mo. —(U.P.)— The national defense program was slightly impeded recently by a fire at the Howell County Welfare farm.

A detachment of 500 men enroute from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., to Camp Robinson, Ark., happened past while the fire was blazing in the laundry at the farm.

The soldiers, using chemical equipment and cans of water from their trucks, doused the blaze and went on. Seven other buildings at the farm had been endangered.

Drive to Rebuild Perry's Flagship Doomed to Fail

HARRISBURG —(INS)— The U. S. S. Niagara, flagship of Commander Oliver Perry on the Great Lakes during the War of 1812, appears headed for the limbo of forgotten ships.

More than a century old, the historic frigate lies on Phesque Isle, near Erie, incompleted and for the time being abandoned. An attempt was made to rebuild her during the past year but funds are exhausted.

The old ship may never be completely rebuilt, according to state historian S. K. Stevens, because the Pennsylvania Legislature failed to appropriate money for that purpose.

The Niagara, from whose decks Perry penned the immortal message, "we have met the enemy and they are ours," seemed doomed to spend her remaining days on land propped up on stilts. The Pennsylvania Historical Commission which sponsored the vessel's reconstruction, is hopeful that the Niagara can be equipped with her old cannon and used as a museum for 1812 relics.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1941.

As was recently remarked, "When all is said and done—more is said than done."

Solemn thought: What is happening right now is what our grandchildren will be reading about in the school histories.

An astrologer predicts that the world will come to an end this fall and a scientist says it will last 2,000,000,000 years—take your choice.

Making Ready for Tasks Ahead

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE membership campaign, just getting under way, will be immediately recognized as quite different from the membership drives of earlier years, when considerable effort was required to attain sufficient enrollment to carry on organization work in an effective way.

In the intervening years, however, the accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce in behalf of Mansfield have been so noteworthy in varied fields of activity that adequate financial support and willingness to share in work of the organization is now taken for granted by a steadily increasing number of members.

Even under normal conditions a city's Chamber of Commerce has many essential tasks to perform which are important to the welfare of all citizens, but the present situation places greatly increased responsibilities on officials, committees and members of the organization.

Recalling the time when Chamber of Commerce membership climbed toward 300, then struggled toward 400, finally reached 500 and later went along to 600—until last year, when the 700 mark was passed—it is realized that enrollment in this group faithfully reflects Mansfield's industrial, business, professional and civic progress through the past couple of decades.

Renewal of present memberships and addition of new ones should be quickly effective in assuring the goal of 750 enrollment for the coming year—a total of 800 would be none too large to anticipate.

Flood Prevention Still a Problem

MONDAY night's torrential rainfall, with customary flooding of streets, basements and the Park avenue east subway, can scarcely fail to revive memories of a past era in local history, when it was confidently anticipated that prevention of flood damage would be effected by a conservancy district plan which contemplated quicker run-off of storm water from lower parts of the city.

Flood danger to factories and damage to homes in the affected districts was made the basis for furtherance of the conservancy district plan, which was interrupted by lack of funds after considerable preliminary work had been done, including purchase of several properties in territory of the proposed waterway.

Whether there will some time be revival of the conservancy district plan, or some substitute decided upon, the fact remains that the same conditions which inspired the original movement still exist and that better protection against flood damage is among Mansfield's problems yet to be solved.

Maryland More Fortunate

WHILE Ohio is heading toward a surplus of $20,000,000 in state taxes, with Governor Bricker stubbornly refusing to approve any reduction in taxes until shortly before next year's election, Governor O'Conor, of Maryland, is pursuing a quite different course.

The state of Maryland, it appears, has finished its fiscal year with a surplus of $8,000,000. so Governor O'Conor says:

"We feel that at a time like this, when the federal government is calling on the people for greater sacrifices, the states should do everything in their power to reduce the load of state and local taxes.

"It's not good sense and it isn't fair to make them wear two millstones around their necks at a time when one of them—the federal tax burden—is necessarily made heavier."

But what is "good sense" in Maryland is apparently not considered "good politics" in Ohio, so the cumbersome surplus will probably continue to be piled up in Columbus, at the expense of already heavily burdened taxpayers—unless Governor Bricker can be induced to place public interest above politics.

Persecution Strengthens Resistance

THE NAZIS, finding their sway endangered by waves of insurrection in every country they have struck down and taken over, adopt the usual procedure of tyrants. They imprison, torture and kill the rebels. Lately there has been a growing wave of executions which horrifies the outer world.

But the executions seem futile. The more people the conquerors kill, the more the rebellion spreads and the harder it is for the overlords to enforce obedience. That is something the oppressors do not understand.

It is, however, an old phenomenon and a normal phase of human nature. There was a saying among the early Christians, when they were persecuted by the Caesars as free-souled nations are now persecuted by the Nazis, that "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." The blood of free men, denied their freedom, becomes the seed that may bring liberty again to Europe and perhaps eventually make the whole world free.

Shortened Work Week

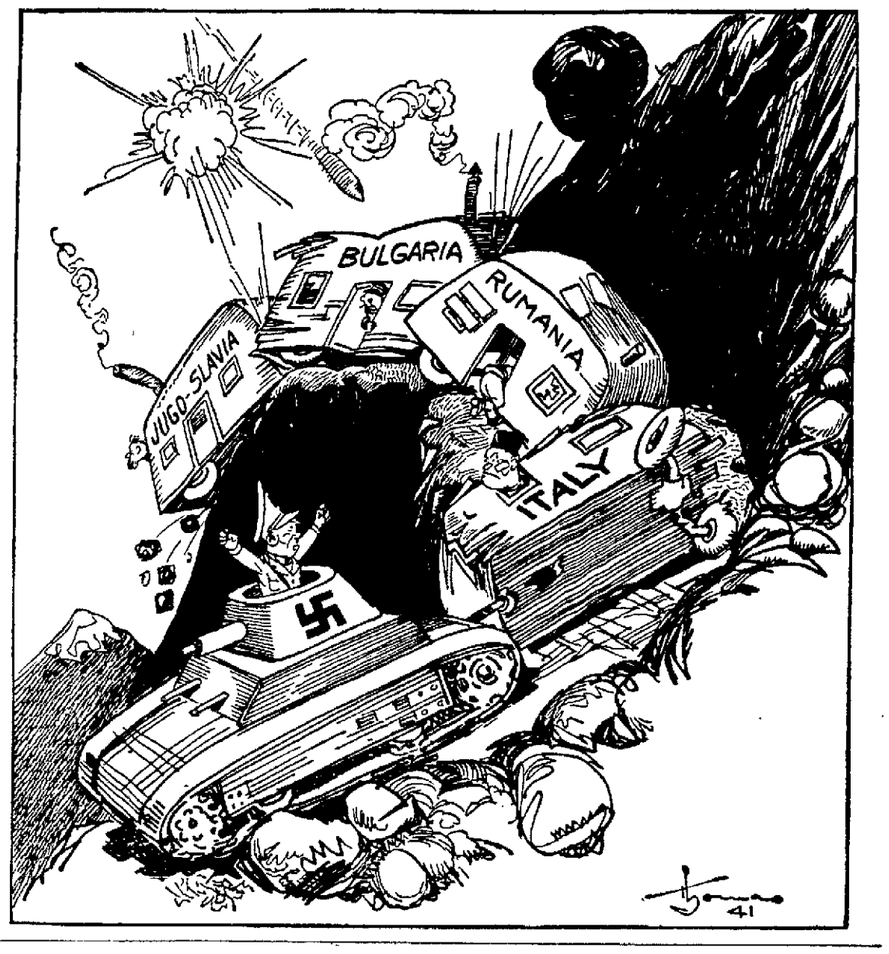
THERE may well be some serious thinking about a National Industrial Conference Board report on American labor. The average American wage earner, it finds, as shown in 25 important industries, is working 41 hours a week, whereas in 1929, without any war compulsion, he was working 48 hours.

It is said that there is an invisible factor here by which labor makes a better showing than it seems to—that it produces more per hour or day because machinery and methods are improved. And this is presumably true.

But surely in a critical time like this, when it is necessary to arm ourselves and many other nations on a vast scale with weapons to save human freedom, it is dangerous not to lengthen working hours. Other countries are putting in much longer weeks.

Then again, it might be possible to furlough Joe Louis one day a month to defend his title.

ROUGH GOING FOR THE TRAILERS



Profit Limit and Cost-Plus Plans

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Congress will not enact Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's plan for a 6 per cent limit on profits. Certainly not this session, and probably never. In fact it is doubtful whether Morgenthau himself will be advocating it two years from now, assuming the war lasts that long.

Nothing is simpler in the way of a demagogic appeal than to preach seizure of ALL WAR PROFITS. Nobody likes the idea of war profits. The thought of making money out of our country's danger is abhorent.

BUT—reform should be tinctured with a little common sense, and a little searching of experience. Right now there is an agitation in—Britain for repeal of the 100 per cent tax on a certain level of profit.

This repeal is NOT being advocated by the manufacturers who presumably would benefit by its repeal, but by earnest students of the situation who have no selfish interest other than, as patriotic citizens, to see the most efficiency possible developed.

LET'S look at our own experience with war profiteers. In the first World war the "cost plus 10 per cent" system became a scandal. When it was first tried the reasons for it seemed excellent. It short circuited the difficulty of estimating costs in advance where experience in determining such costs was lacking. It also avoided the difficulty of wage increases upsetting the estimates on which competitive bids had been based. Finally it eliminated the lag in production, which making the estimates, submitting the bids and waiting for the award entailed.

But it led to scandalous costs. The contractor literally did not give a rap whether his manufacturing expense ran riot or not. He granted wage increases regardless of whether they were deserved. In fact every time he boosted the costs he boosted his own 10 per cent fee.

Then was substituted the cost-plus-fixed-fee basis. That was better in that it removed all incentive on the part of the contractor to boost costs. But it failed to remove the other objections.

THE BRITISH, until recently always operated on the theory that the contractors furnishing war supplies were entitled to a fat profit. Then the government policy was to dig deeply into that profit with both corporation and personal income taxes. At least the contractors under that system were on their toes. They did their best to produce as rapidly and as economically as possible.

Whereas any tax system which takes ALL above a certain amount results in a "don't care" attitude on the part of contractors and workers. The incentive to do an economical job is practically gone.

There is another phase to the situation, which will impress Mr. Morgenthau somewhat next March, and a good deal more in March, 1943. A sizable chuck of all government revenue comes from corporation and individual income taxes. Despite the size of the present federal levies (to which in many instances state levies must be added) there is still an incentive to make profits.

If the government removes this incentive, and thus removes the brake on higher costs and waste, there will be a falling off in the corporation and income tax payments which will be little short of flabbergasting to amateur economists who from all their calculations omit the important factor of human nature.

Yes, It Is a Rose

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE TINY GIRL leaned against my knee and smiled up into my face.

"See," she said proudly, holding up a bit of paper.

I looked at the paper. I could see only some faint, scribbled lines, without form.

The little girl felt the question in my eyes. A shadow wavered across her face—then a small defiance.

"It's a rose," she said firmly—but she looked as a puppy looks when he wants you to pat him.

I knew that look. I had felt that way myself.

"Yes, dear, it is a rose—a lovely rose," I answered quickly. And we beamed together over her masterpiece.

Then she went off to play. And I sat thinking the long, sad thoughts that sometimes come,

I thought how valiantly we dream when we are young—

So sure our gallant dreams will all come true.

And then the years move on, and we move with them, dreaming still.

A little fearful now, perhaps, not quite so sure we will set the world afire . . . but making mighty gestures . . . talking big!

Starting so many splendid, daring deeds—

Finishing so few!

More years.

OUR PAST.

The path behind us is all littered with our broken dreams.

Yet still we think that somewhere, just ahead, the Big Adventure waits—

A little while and we will show the world!

A little while—

Another chance—

A new and finer love—

A bigger and better job—

Then things will click—at last!

And they will see we weren't just putterin' around.

Those times we failed? Those times we went astray?

We didn't know then what 'twas all about.

NOW WE KNOW.

And now each stroke will count. Soon they will see the whole—our perfect, finished plan—soon they will see and cry "How wonderful!"

A little while.

Then, suddenly, the years are done—

And we are children, standing at God's mighty knee—

A scribbled scrap of paper in our hand—

With only some vague remarks to show for all our work and dreams.

Will God, I wonder, scorn those poor weak lines—

Say that they mean nothing—punish us for wasting time?

Or will He see the pleading in our foolish eyes

And answer, gently, "Yes, dear child, it is a rose."

Timely Editorial

Spank the Parents.

Too frequently of late children have been defying school discipline and have staged what they call strikes. Grownups have been setting them bad examples and must not complain if they are imitated.

The parents of these children need some schooling in the duties of citizenship. Public schools are the responsibility of the citizens in the districts they represent. This responsibility is exercised through boards of education elected by the people. If the people disapprove of the conduct of their representatives they have a remedy in the election. Meanwhile, it is the parent's duty to make his child behave in an orderly manner toward his school and his teachers.

The child's part in the matter is not one of right but of privilege. Education is compulsory. The table is set for the child and it is up to him to be in his place and to take what is given him.—Detroit News.

President Studies Various Ways To Broaden Social Security Act

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The picture of Secretary Hull blowing out the candles on his 70-year birthday cake has gone around the world.

But the picture did not show the Chinese, the Japanese, the Germans, the British, and the French who surrounded him.

Secretary Hull's press conference is still the most international scene in the entire capital. It brings together, elbow to elbow, the peaceful newsmen who represent their warring countries.

In Hull's birthday group were Joe Chiang and David Lu, both Chinese, Henri de Longfief of Havas (French) News Agency, Kurt Sell of the German News Agency, Masuo Kato and Clarke Kawakami, both of Domei (Japanese) News Agency, Denys Smith of the London Daily Telegraph, Sol Hirsch of Reuters of London, Lawrence Todd of Tass (Soviet) News Agency, and so on around the table.

Many of their countries were at war or violently hated each other. Yet it was to this "international club" of newsmen that Hull said he had never been associated with a more agreeable group.

Social Security Changes.

THE President's special message to congress on broadening the Social Security Act is still in rough-draft form, but here are some of the specific major changes it will recommend:

1. To expand greatly the scope of the law, thereby including 27,000,000 additional workers—maritime labor, domestics, self-employers, casual and part-time workers, employes of non-profit organizations, such as foundations and churches, and farm laborers. With more than 40,000,000 already covered by the act, these additions will bring the total up to around 70,000,000.

2. Increase the joint employer-employe payroll tax from 2 to 4 per cent the first year, with graduated raises thereafter. This is counted on to act as a brake on inflation during the current big-spending defense emergency and as a cushion against an economic tail-spin afterwards.

3. Temporary and permanent disability payments. The law now provides insurance for unemployment, but contains no protection for physical incapacity.

4. Raise the federal share of old-age assistance benefits paid by the states, which are now matched 50-50 by the federal government. The act limits this federal contribution to $20 a month, but only one state, California, meets this maximum figure. It's the president's aim to change this rigid system so as to increase the federal contribution in the poorer states, probably through a per-capita wealth formula, so as to enable pensioners in these states to get a bigger monthly check.

5. Cut the period of time an employe has to work in order to be eligible for a retirement pension. At present the requirement is 65 years of age plus employment 50 per cent of the time since Jan. 1, 1937. Also, in the event of his death before 65, the recipient must have worked at least 18 months out of the last three years to entitle his wife or other beneficiary to a pension. Under the president's plan, all these periods would be reduced, thus greatly extending the scope of pension eligibility.

Roosevelt also is being strongly urged to lower the pension age from 65 to 60. Moguls of the Social Security Board are opposed to this, but supporters of the various pension movements are vigorously for it. If the president does not recommend it in his message, a determined effort will be made to change the age-figure in congress.

Note—Most interesting problem being threshed out behind-the-scenes is the manner of collecting the tax on domestic help. To relieve housewives with one or two servants from keeping books, the president has suggesetd the use of social security stamps that can be bought at post offices.

New Party Line.

THE party line boys have switched their line again—this time regarding John L. Lewis, long their close ally and champion.

From now on, the official Communist stand is all-out against Lewis.

This switch is one of the most significent developments in CIO history, and is certain to have far-reaching repercussions on Lewis' secret political schemes.

From the start of the CIO, Lewis played hand-in-glove with the Commies and their fellow-traveller satellites. Aggressive, persistent and experienced in politicking, the leftwingers, while always a minority, were able to maneuver themselves into key places in most of the CIO unions and its national headquarters.

In these vantage postions they formed a closely-knit pretorian guard for Lewis, particularly after the Nazi-Soviet alliance of 1939, when the Communist party line was reversed overnight from hostility to Nazism to active collaboration with Nazi foreign policy.

So with Lewis violently isolatinoist, these leftwingers, under blistering attack within the CIO, snuggled up closely to him. He protected them and they were the backbone of his support.

But when Hitler suddenly invaded Russia, the Commies abruptly shed their isolationism and became red-hot anti-isolationists. But while at odds with Lewis on the war issue, they still continued to play ball with him on CIO affairs. This "marriage of convenience" operated with considerable success in keeping both in the saddle. On the strength of it Lewis began girding himself for a drive to recapture the CIO presidency at the Nov. 17 convention.

But the lovey-doveying is all off now. It was officially called off in a 12-column Daily Worker article by Roy Hudson, member of the CP central committee and political bureau in charge of trade unions.

Laying down the new official party line on Lewis, Hudson blasted him as a reactionary and foe of labor and declared that those who played along with him on domestic issues were "living in a fool's paradise." The pronunciamento concluded with a big bouquet of praise for Phil Murray and a very significent enjoinder against strikes in defense plants.

"The time has come," Hudson declared, "to show the middle class that labor is patriotic and that it can win gains without strikes."

Note—Inside CIO word is that Lewis is backing his close henchman, Allen Haywood, CIO organizational director, for secretary of the CIO against able, young Jim Carey, Murray's personal choice.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I know a jockey and a Sunday school teacher who own a fruit farm and market their produce in large open air markets along the highways leading into the metropolis. I also know an ex-orphan from Atlanta and a New York lawyer who have pooled their talents in the business of manufacturing automatic lubricating devices for trains, planes, and tanks for the United States army.

If either of these combinations began seeking public office, some observer would exhume the trite but true remark that "politics make strange bed-fellows."

They do indeed, and so does business.

LET'S take the lawyer. He is E. Richard Bagarozy, and he comes not from a legal, but from an operatic background. His father was Enrico Caruso's manager and took him on tours of South America and the United States. His brother, Bob Bagar is a music critic for one of New York's afternoon newspapers. His wife is Louise Casclotti, the well known contralto. With this background to influence him. Bagarozy dumbfounded his family by turning to the law.

Now let's take the ex-orphan. He is Philip M. Carter. It is interesting to note that today, years after his stay in that home for parent-less children, Carter is one of the directors of this orphanage.

He used to be a broker in Wall Street, and one day he found himself in Bagarozy's office, pursuing the dream of a revolutionary gear-shifting device that would do away with clutches and gears. That dream hasn't come true, not quite, but the meeting did result in the formation of an enterprise that today has its headquarters in West 56th Street, New York City.

THEY say their enterprise has has brought a new era in lubricating efficiency, and here's how: the gadget they manufacture is a portable grease gun. Until they came along, grease guns had to be hitched to a wall, where current was available. Theirs doesn't. It looks like a little play wagon that you roll anywhere into parking lots or between rows of hundreds of United States Army tanks. They do not use air pressure—they used a steel rod, and it operates in below-zero weather.

Bagarozy, the lawyer, and Carter, the ex-broker, think they have something.

If they hadn't come up with the idea, someone else probably would have. Someone always does. But what I am interested in is this: What would have happened to the orphan and the lawyer if their lives hadn't turned out as they have? Carter might today be in an office in Atlanta! Bagarozy might be conducting opera tours.

A Farmer's Diary

Cutting Corn at Night

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THESE moonlight nights are an opportune time for me to cut our corn crop. All my neighbors have theirs in shock a week or more ago. Some have sowed their wheat. Since I do not expect to use this rotation, I have let the ears ripen on the stalk.

Frost has borne down heavily two different times, nipped the pumpkin vines and ruined the cucumber patch, but the corn is untouched. During the high winds of some days ago, the lower blades blew in windrows to the grassy edge of the field, while the greener ones waved like banners in the storm.

During the day, blades and stalks are sharp and brittle, and often break in two with the slightest grasp. When I wait until the dew begins to form, the dampness makes the corn easy to handle. So, at dusk, I take the hooklike corn cutter from its hanger and walk briskly down among the tall corn. Somehow I feel a different environment here than in the barnyard, or about the lawn. Ripening corn has shut me out from everything except the stars, the long gray line of the milky way, the silvery rising moon.

Between the low rustle of the dampened blades and the rhythmic slithering of the cutter there are short moments of quiet after I place each heavy armful securely against the growing shock. For a short rest sometimes, I stand by and listen to the sounds that a silent moonlight hour can give. It is then that Dusty, the long-furred black kitten with a dust of white hairs across her back, softly creeps between the freshly cut stubble, bows high her back and purrs about my ankles.

When the row is finished, I look back from the farther end along the moon-washed line of standing shocks and moist newly severed stubble and enjoy the work accomplished.

Here I have gathered golden ears that will feed my barnyard folk; will furnish fragrant meal for mush or rich hot pone for winter suppers. I have built a shelter where the weary shivering pheasant may pass comfortably a cold November night, where rabbits may play about in early squalls of snow and dash headlong in for safety, where moles may plow the loose unfrozen soil beneath.

Time passes swiftly—but if I work too long my wife appears at the end of the row and insists that it's time to quit. So, beneath the moon, I walk home with a lady.

HE'S A HERO

BETHEL, Conn — (U.P.) — No problem is too minute for the attention of the Connecitcut constabulary.

State Policeman Robert J. Murphy heard a woman's scream and dashed into the home of Mrs. Joseph Leo. He saw her gazing out the second story window with a look of dismay. Officer Murphy quickly sized up the situation, and just as quickly climbed out on the porch roof and retrieved Mrs. Leo's newly-baked pie that the wind had blown from the windowsill to the rain gutter.

FORT HOSPITAL HUGE

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—(U.P.)—North Carolina's largest hospital is in this booming army camp. The hospital, built at a cost of $1,000,000, has 1,680 beds and covers an area of 2,680,000 square feet. Composed of 83 wards, the one-story unit has 112 hall-connected buildings and will be manned by 75 doctors and 240 nurses.

Single Again

The brief marriage of actress Lana Turner and band leader Artie Shaw came to a legal end as she obtained a final divorce decree in Reno, Nev. The couple eloped to Las Vagas, Nev., on Feb. 14, 1940.

FISH HIT

HAMMOND, Ind — (U.P.) — Oily refuse blanketing the waters of Lake Michigan is causing death of the remaining edible fish and constitutes one of the two hazards to be combatted by commercial fishermen.

Fishermen have banded together and are called the International Board of Inquiry for Great Lakes Fisheries and are urging support of uniform regulations to preserve the dwindling supply of fish that furnish a living for 4,000 fishermen.

The buildings in New York's immense Rockefeller center actually weigh less than the material excavating in their construction.

BOOK REVIEWED FOR ASSOCIATION SERIES

Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff Presented First of Programs at Congregational Church Tuesday to Large Audience.

MRS. W. E. BENNINGHOFF, of Cleveland, reviewed the book, "Bird of the Wilderness," by Vincent Sheean, Tuesday afternoon at the first of the program series being sponsored by the Women's association of the First Congregational church. In her engaging way Mrs. Benninghoff completely carried her audience into the story which told of a young man and his personal struggle for happiness.

The romantic title for Mr. Sheean's novel comes from a poem by Tagore, a title most suitable to the mood of the story and the period in which it takes places. The novel is laid in a small town in Illinois in the winter of 1916 and the spring of 1917 when the United States was hovering on the brink of war with Germany. It gives a comprehensive picture of the way people felt in those days and how a boy of partly German parentage reacted to the war sentiment and to his German-American relatives.

This reviewer, who has won Mansfield audiences previously with her interesting characterizations, touchingly described the love story of a sensitive, intelligent young man growing up in uncongenial atmosphere, and finding understanding and appreciation in a woman older than he.

The next review to be given here by Mrs. Benninghoff will be on Nov. 4 at the First Congregational church. "The Day of the Trumpets" by David Cornell De Jong will be given at that time. These programs are open to the public.

Discouraged Woman Asks For Divorce

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I am writing to you in desperation and because you are a stranger, I know your advice will be sounder than anyone else's. I've been married twelve years to a man who has his own business. Our married life has been more or less stormy, but especially during the last few years.

"At first it was girls and then he started drinking. Now it's both. Believe me, Miss Fairfax, my nerves are near the breaking point, although he doesn't know this.

"We have two children of eight and six, and they hardly ever see their father. He regrets having them. During the past two years he has neglected me completely, and I have taken care of myself and the home to the best of my ability.

"He has told me he goes with women and tells me to go with other men, but I wouldn't think of it, as my children mean so much more to me than getting myself involved with any man. My husband has told me I am one hundred per cent mother and housekeeper so it can't be because I have neglected my duties. He is 41 and I am 35, although I look younger.

"I long for companionship. My husband comes home late at night and leaves before the children are up in the morning, so he gives me no time. At home, he gives me just enough money to see me through. Do you think a separation might awaken him to his responsibility.

"DISCOURAGED."

I don't wonder you're discouraged. Perhaps a separation may awaken your husband to the comforts he enjoys at present.

They miss their good housekeeping, these married male butterflies. One wrote to me not long ago, told me he wanted to be reconciled to his wife because he was tired of picking up his own laundry, wearing undarned socks, and going out to his breakfast. A dose of these "hardships" might be good for your man.

You tell me he is 41 years of age. This is the "Mid-Channel" for married men, as the playwright Pinero wisely pointed out in his play by that title. They feel age creeping up on them and long for a few last flings. It's a sort of last call for dinner in the dining-car. Even if married life has been stormy, a good wife, out of the depths of her maternal instinct will stand by rather than see the father of her children go over the rocks—as sheep are known to do, once they get started.

I certainly hope, for both your sakes, that you patch things up. A middle-aged man is a fair mark for a gold-digger, and I know you will be happier if you do not break up your home. Always there are children's welfare to be considered. My best wishes to you.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Mrs. Nicholas Besch, jr., was elected president of the S. L. C. club at the first fall meeting of the year held Tuesday evening at her home on Grace street. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Of course," Miss Whitlock said, and on the word took Lillian's blue quilted robe from the foot of the bed and handed it to me. I lifted the heavy rolled hem and scrutinized it, then put another question.

"Is her workbasket in this room?"

"Yes, here on the table. Want it?"

"If you please," I answered. "Just bring it into the living room, if you can leave her."

"She won't stir for hours," the nurse said, stepping to the bedside and sending an appraising glance over her patient. Then she turned and, with Lillian's workbasket in her hands, followed me into the small sitting room of the suite.

Hem Has Been Opened.

I sat down in an easy chair, with the robe in my lap, and she set the workbasket on the table. I looked into it and took out a pair of sharp scissors. Then, taking the heavy rolled hem in my hands, I ran my fingers along every portion of it until I came to one section which gave back a sound so faint that I hardly could call it a crackle, yet distinctly different from the rustle of the rest of the hem.

My eyes caught something different also. The thread which ran through this portion was slightly different, in both color and texture, from that which fastened the rest of the hem together.

With fingers that were suddenly tremulous I looked through the other contents of the workbasket, and found not only a spool of thread exactly like the short runs which were different from the rest, but also a threaded needle, from the same spool, which had been stuck into the padded side of the basket.

One thing was certain. If I ripped the them. I could sew it up again with thread exactly like that which I ripped out, and thus keep Lillian, when she should awaken, from finding out that I had been meddling with her robe.

I heard Miss Whitlock catch her breath as I began to snip the threads of the hem But she did not speak until I had ripped the stitches of the "different" thread on both sides, parted the rolled lining, and taken from it a long slender packet, like a small school ruler in size and shape, wrapped so tightly in thin muslin cloth that I was surprised it had given out the faint crackle that I had heard.

Finds Letter In the Hem.

"You've found it!" Miss Whitlock whispered.

"I hope so." I returned, as I laid the robe on another chair and began to unwrap the tightly bound parcel. In another few seconds I held in my hand a folded paper, which, when brought back to its original shape, proved to be a letter, wrapped in an envelope which had been steamed and made into one sheet.

I glanced over both envelope and letter quickly, and lifted my eyes to those of the nurse, watching me intently.

"Both are in Marion's handwriting," I said. "I must take them downstairs at once, but I will be right back."

"Will it be possible—" she began, and stopped short.

"To replace them as if they never had been taken out?" I finished. "I trust so. If you don't mind threading two more needles with this thread—I indicated the spool—so I won't have to waste any time when I sew up that hem again, I shall be grateful. And I shall want paper, pen and ink."

"Everything shall be in readiness," she promised, and I hurried out of the room and down the stairs to the library, where my father and Lillian's husband waited.

They rose to their feet abruptly as I came in, and their eyes caught sight of the papers in my hands.

"I knew you'd do it, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood exclaimed. "Where did you find them?"

I told him hurriedly, and added a breathless question.

"Ago you going to need these originals, or can I make copies for you immediately?"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 9.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Exceptional opportunities and adventures may be expected, in all relations of life, judging by a most intriguing chain of planetary configurations. Big deals with major corporations, public utilities, fraternal or political bodies should be worth going after, with originality backed up by practical and wholly constructive plans. There should be assurance of surprising rewards of an enduring nature. But it will take much hard work, and much circumspect readiness against opposition from high places.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of eventful and memorable experiences and adventures, in both business and private affairs. Big deals of momentous nature may be at hand for development along novel, original, even revolutionary lines, with the public welfare, political or financial rewards at issue.

All calls for much prudence, vigilance and keen grasp of peculiar circumstances to be cleverly disposed of. The result may be a surprising turn of fortune with an enduring and established security for the future.

A child born on this day should be bounteously endowed with attributes and talents for extraordinary success in life, with romance and adventures of thrilling significance. Business as well as private affiliations and exploits will be dramatic.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A DELICATE OPERATION

Whether to pass and let the bidding die at a low level, or to reopen it in one way or another, can be a very delicate operation. It is important even in rubber bridge, but not nearly so much so as in duplicate, in which a small difference in contract points scored may mean the difference between top and bottom score on a deal. Letting the opponents make a low contract may be cheaper than stirring them up into finding a different contract which can produce more. And you never know for sure but what they may be in a losing declaration, whereas some other may be emphatically makable.

Bidding began like that at several tables of a social duplicate. Where East then passed, as he did at one table, his side got a good score, South being set two at his 2-Diamonds, as he took only two tricks in clubs and one in hearts in addition to three trump tricks, since West bedeviled him with his bunched trumps.

Where East refused to pass at that stage and instead took the ordinarily sounder course of bidding 2-Spades to reopen it, that was passed to North, who made the apparently hazardous call of 3-Clubs. At that it was played, five-odd being made, as the only tricks lost were one in hearts and one in spades, a losing heart being tossed on one of the diamond tops, a spade being ruffed and one being put on a fifth diamond, which was set up by two diamond ruffs.

Peculiarly, a club game for North-South was the only game in the deal. In some cases where East gave a spade raise on the first round, West got into 4-Spades, but took a licking, as the defenders can nip off two tricks in each minor, plus a diamond ruff.

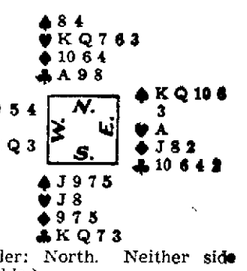
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South leads the club K and then switches to the heart J, how should East play this deal to make 4-Spades?

The city wil receive a total of 4 mills within the 10-mill limit for retirement.

DISCUSS CITY'S TRAFFIC ILLS

Bucyrus City Council Has Heated Debate on Parallel Parking Plan.

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus parking situation, which has become acute since the adoption of the parallel parking system several weeks ago, came up for a heated discussion in city council meeting Tuesday night with the result that the parking problem is now in the hands of the resolutions committee. The committee was given the question to consider with instructions to report back to council in two weeks.

The parking controversy reached a climax with receipt of a petition bearing signatures of 103 downtown business people. The petition stated that signers were protesting the present system of parking which has decreased parking facilities and reduced business and suggesting two hour parking enforcement.

Chief of Police Arthur Stuckert, in commenting on the petition, stated that the traffic commission was in favor of parking meters as a solution to the problem. Speaking in favor of two hour parking enforcement George Davis, Bucyrus restaurant proprietor, stated that the parking meter system was not favored by business people.

Also included in the discussion of the city's traffic problem was the recommendations as submitted by a special committee from Kilbourne school Parent-Teachers organization, who asked that steps be taken to control traffic in the vicinity of the school which has become a safety hazard.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—It won't be long now. Nearly all the straws in the wind show the rising pressure to send American troops overseas and into this war. The latest is Premier General Jan Smuts who says from South Africa that our entry into the war is inevitable and that if we are to have a hand in the peace we must have a hand in the war. "You cannot merely stand on the side lines and cheer us on. You must come with us."

Johnson

General Smuts is the great South African leader who captained the brave fight against Britain for Boer freedom and then became a pillar of the empire, took a leading part in the World War I and the peace conference and was a leading architect of the League of Nations.

Consider that with the debate in the House of Commons about the shortage of British man-power and its partition between war effort and industrial effort. Couple it with the forthright statements of the two leading British generals, Wavell and Auchinleck that Hitler can't be erased on the continent without American man-power.

There is nothing far-fetched about that assumption of purpose, because spokesmen for this administration repeat it with almost every passing day.

Of course, there is one alternative — internal explosions within the German area, even with no great defeat on the battle lines, completely changing the character of the German government and presenting an entirely new aspect of the problem. That is not at present likely, but in war anything may happen, almost any day.

Skip that possibility for a moment. Does anybody suppose that, as the hope of allied victory becomes more clearly dependent on an American expeditionary force, we wouldn't have one—and have it regardless of law, promises or the wishes of the American people?

All you have to do to answer that question is to look at the record and see how we have been shoved, cajoled and committed into underwriting all-out British victory regardless of all these supposed deterrents in a democracy to one war-like move after another.

We already have an A.E.F.—perhaps as much as completely equipped modern American division, serving in Iceland under a British commander-in-chief. We didn't even consent to that during the World war. We accepted unified strategical command by Foch, but General Pershing retained tactical independance of command of his entire army.

This column is not today arguing about the necessity or wisdom of this inevitable trend. In an atmosphere still loaded with assurances that there will be no great overseas army adventures, it is merely trying to point out how worthless they are and how disappointing they are likely to prove to be.

Of course, as recent army maneuvers have shown, we are not prepared for any such thing, in training, equipment or leadership That won't make much difference if the pressure really gets hot. It will be said that we are better prepared than were the Greeks, the Yugo Slavs, the Danes or even the British to Dunkirk

That is true, but remember what happened to those armies.

AFL CAUTIOUS IN ENDORSING FDR MESSAGE

Leaders Express Approval But Withhold Comment on No-Strike Plea.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE—American Federation of Labor executives today cautiously endorsed President Roosevelt's message to their annual convention which urged elimination of defense strikes.

They praised the message in its general outlines but with only two exceptions they pointedly refrained from comment on the president's warning that "this is not the time to take chances with the national safety through any stoppage of defense work or defense production."

AFL President William Green said that the convention "undoubtedly" would approve the message formally after committee consideration. Otherwise he made no comment although just before the delivery of the message he had told the convention that, because defense strikes were the work of "imperfect men," unions should not be "condemned to everlasting punishment" for their actions.

Other leaders also approved the speech but did not offer specific comcnt on the no-strike plea with the exception of Daniel J. Tobin, Teamsters' president and AFL vice president, and Joseph A. Padway, AFL general counsel.

Tobin suggested that the government should name those responsible for defense strikes and thus clear the AFL of blame.

Padway blamed defense strikes on rulings of the national labor relations board in jurisdiction disputes

NLRB Chairman Harry Millis, he said was especially active in fostering an attitude that constitutes "sabotage" of the president's policies. Padway said board decisions favored single bargaining agents rather than the smaller craft unions in large industrial units. The CIO is organized along industrial lines

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins also called for labor's full cooperation in the defense emergency when she addressed the convention.

Up and Down THE STREET

After composing some school tunes, Mrs Harry B. Soulen, 555 Overlook road, has decided to try her luck with two popular songs she has just composed. She has signed a contract with a Hollywood, Calif., firm to act as her agent in introducing the popular numbers, "Cathy" and "Dreaming on a Cloud." Mrs. Soulen, wife of the vice president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, said she has written music for the Milwaukee, Wis., schools, but this is her first attempt in the popular field.

Ten girls, aged 12 to 16, were responsible for the contribution.

DIVERS WORK ON WRECKAGE OF LOCOMOTIVE

War Department Estimates Removal of Bridge Debris To Require Several Days.

BULLETIN

SAULTE STE. MARIE, Mich.—(U P)—A locomotive and freight train were removed from the Soo canal by wrecking crews and divers today and army engineers promptly began trying to raise a steel railroad bridge which collapsed over the canal yesterday.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich — High wind and heavy rain today hampered wrecking crews and divers attempting to clear a locomotive and a steel bridge from the Soo canal to permit urgently needed cargoes of iron ore to get through.

The two largests locks of the canal were jammed yesterday when the bridge collapsed under the locomotive and a freight train. Engineer Hazen Willis of Gladstone, Mich., and Conductor Dave Monroe of Sault Ste. Marie were drowned. Fireman Carl Zelmer and Brakeman Francis Peller, also on the cab, fell into the canal with the locomotive, but swam ashore. The train did not fall in.

War department engineers said it would be "several days" ceeded normaly—before shipping could be resumed through the locks, connecting Lakes Superior and Huron.

Two locks, both too shallow to accomodate a fully-laden vessel, remained open. It was estimated tha 100 boats carrying iron ore from the upper Michigan peninsula and Minnesota ranges were stalled in Lake Superior.

Engineers said many of the boats probably would have to return to Lake Superior ports and discharge part of their cargoes before passing through the smaller locks.

Authorities could not explain the bridge collapse, but discounted the the locks have been under military guard since the beginning of the war.

Peep Into the Future: One of this column's most delightful spies, Catherine Hayes Brown, has seen her daughter, Miss Helen Hayes, in the out-of-town tryout of "Candle in the Wind," and she proffers the unbiased report that both Maxwell Anderson's drama and the star of the piece are terrific. Mrs. Brown admits she cried, and predicts that you and I will, too.

The thing that fascinated her most at her first viewing of the play however, was Helen's new glamor. Up to now Helen has been so busy stuffing her cheeks with apples and aping the stride of a Shakespearean boy and dressing the part of a mousey heroine that glamor is a word not usually associated with her. But just wait, Mrs. Brown says

It seems Helen has had the great Valentina, who whips up skirts for Kate Hepburn and Lynn Fontanne, design her costumes for "Candle in the Wind," and it turns out that she is simply ravishing, a sort of combination of Bernhardt and Mrs Harrison Williams.

In fact, Mrs. Brown went backstage afterwards and said:

Council Makes Appointments To Fire, Police Boards.

City council last night named four of its members to act as members of the board of trustees of the police relief and the firemen pension funds for the coming year.

Councilmen George Kyle and Harry Emmons were renamed to serve on the firemen's pension board while Councilman Russell Porch and Lester Hunter were elected as police relief board members

Council Re-Hires Collector for Parking Meters

Mansfield has an official parking meter collector again.

City council at its October meeting last night reappointed Lloyd L Kochenderfer, meter collector whose appointment had expired Sept 25, to serve for the remainder of the year.

Kochenderfer quit making collections and repairs after that date because council had made no provision for his salary.

There was, however, provision for the collection of receipts from the meters. The same ordinance which created the city's new traffic squad, listed the collection of the meter receipts as one of its duties.

Collections have been made by Patrolman Clare Kyler since Kochenderfer left his post. Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals and Safety-Service Director C. M. Crafton, however, appealed to council to release the traffic patrolman for traffic duty by reappointing Kochenderfer.

One of the points considered by council was the payment of $135 monthly to Kochenderfer while the new patrolmen receive only $110. City officials, however, did not use one of the new patrolmen for the collections but another who is being paid $150 monthly.

Although Kochenderfer will receive $400 for his services for the remainder of the year, he loses any payment for the past two weeks in which he has voluntarily repaired meters when needed.

PLUM BROOK TO START NOV. 15

High Explosives To Come Off Production Line on Schedule, Army Says.

(By Associated Press)

SANDUSKY — High explosives will come off the first production line at Plum Brook ordnance plant on schedule Nov. 15, the army says

The current pace of construction will make it possible to meet this previously established deadline, declared Capt. Frank A Ray, construction quartermaster. In mid-August the work week was stepped up from 48 hours to 60. Major construction began in June, at which time the last of 100 farm families left the site.

Capt. Jermain Rodenhauser, commanding officer, said TNT would be shipped from Plum Brook in boxes averaging 100 pounds each. DNT will be shipped in barrels.

"We are breaking our backs to start the first line of production" by Nov 15, he asserted.

Although none of the buildings are completed in the area devoted to making acid used in manufacture of high explosives, several are being finished and will be ready for the start of operations.

Most of Plum Brook's eventual output will go to the Ravenna shell-loading plant in Portage county. When it reaches full production next March 31, Plum Brook will be turning out enough explosives to supply an army of a million men, or the daily equivalent of 8,000 bombs weighing 100 pounds each.

COUNCIL RESERVES BLOCK-END AREAS FOR TRUCK UNLOADING

Power to set up restricted parking districts was given Safety-Service Director C M Crafton by city council last night to allow the director to clear block-end parking spaces to permit parking of trucks there to facilate the traffic flow

Crafton was authorized to establish restricted zones up to 50 feet from the crosswalks. Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said that the power would be used to remove meters from some of the downtown intersections so that trucks could use them instead of double-parking

Last month, Boals experimented with block-end parking for trucks and found that the resulting elimination of double-parked trucks also eliminated the clogging of the narrow streets. The meters at the intersections were hooded during the experiment but will now be removed entirely.

Boals announced that the additional space will also be used to provide slightly larger parking spaces at the parking meters. The commissioners said that the larger spaces would make it easier for motorists to park and would eliminate many of the tie-ups resulting from difficult parking.

The new restricted districts will also allow motorists to pass other drivers who have pulled to the center of the street to make left turns

Boals said that the 50-foot limit would not be needed in most instances but at a few intersections, especially those at South Main and First street and at Hedges and First street would be needed to give trucks using the new 42-A truck route adequate room for turning.

Restricted parking districts will also be set up on Mulberry and Second streets to speed the traffic flow at intersections, according to Boals.

The traffic commissioner was also given $495 from the parking meter fund to purchase additional traffic signs and paint needed to post the city's speeding zones.

Brandeis Leaves Estate of More Than $3,000,000

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The will of the late Louis D. Brandeis which was filed for probate in the district court yesterday revealed that the great liberal jurist left an estate of approximately $3,200,000.

Before becoming a justice, almost 25 years ago at an annual salary of $20,000, he had been an active practicing lawyer and it was assumed that the bulk of his estate was the result of invested fees received during that period and from royalties on the few books he had written.

The bulk of the estate was left to the causes he championed—Survey Associates, Inc., of New York, "for the maintenance of civil liberties and workers' education in the United States"; the University of Louisville, Ky., and Palestine Endowment Funds, Inc., and Hadassah, New York Zionist organizations.

Brandeis provided a $400,000 trust fund for his widow, Mrs. Alice G. Brandeis, and $200,000 trust funds for each of his two daughters, Mrs. Susan Gilbert of New York, and Mrs Elizabeth Raushenbush of Madison, Wis.

CIVIC DEFENSE COMMITTEE TO CONVENE FRIDAY

Group To Check Plan To Meet Local Situation; Volunteer Enlistment Discussed.

Preliminary plans for the organization of a civilian defense plan to guard the city in case of any unrest due to wartime activity will be discussed at the first meeting of the recently-organized civilian defense committee Friday at 7:30 p. m., at the American Legion home.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, general chairman, said today that the meeting would be held so that committee members could make a survey of the local situation before starting to develop a program which will probably include fire watchers, air raid precautions, defense from bombing attacks and other safeguards for civilian groups during attacks.

The chairman had announced previously that the local setup would be patterned after that suggested by New York's Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia but that the committee would study the experiences of other cities before formulating a plan.

Also to be considered will be the instruction for Mansfield police in civilian defense work which will be started within the next two weeks. Police Chief Meade K. Bates plans to instruct his men in combating sabotage and espionage upon his return from the FBI's National Police academy which he is attending in Washington this week.

Civilian defense programs are usually built around the police force of the city, according to Kalbfleisch. The chairman has already named a group of representative citizens to serve on the committee. Others will be named he announced, if it is believed they can aid in setting up the defense plan.

Next step, the chairman said will be the voluntary enlistment of all persons wishing to take part in the program. The committee will then place the volunteers in the defense division for which their talents indicate they are best suited.

LISTS ONLY ONE FATAL ACCIDENT

September Report of State Highway Patrol Reveals 51 Mishaps In Period.

The Mansfield substation of the state highway patrol, reported today that out of 51 accidents occurring last month on state highways in the Mansfield area, only one was fatal.

Of the remaining 50 accidents, 27 caused injury to 39 persons, and 23 caused only property damages to those involved.

During the month of September, 54 arrests were made by highway patrolmen, over one-fourth of these for speeding, and almost the same number, 13, for failure to observe stop signs. Only three arrests were recorded for the month for drunken driving.

Drivers' examinations for operators' licenses were given to 110 applicants, 25 of whom failed.

Special details for parades, speeches, and army escorts, numbered 17, while first aid was given to accident victims three times.

Richland county led, both in accidents and arrests, the other five counties covered by the Mansfield substation, with Ashland county coming in second on both counts.

ADOPTS POLICY

Physical examinations given Richland county youths drafted for military service will be accepted by the Richland county probate court in carrying out requirements for medical examinations prior to the issuance of marriage licenses.

The same applies to enlisted persons in all branches of military service.

However, such applicants must have had examinations within the 30 days prior to the date of applying for a marriage license, Probate Judge S. H. Cramer said.

The policy here is in line with recommendations of the state department of health.

J. A. C. TO HELP IN OBSERVANCE OF 'NAVY DAY'

Organization's Defense Group Also Plans To Boost Naval Enlistments Here.

After two weeks of planning, the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce today completed arrangements to aid the Mansfield naval recruiting station in getting recruits for the U. S. navy, and otherwise contribute to the national defense program.

Af a meeting yesterday between William G. Cox, local recruiting officer and James Eberly, chairman of the J. A. C. defense committee, the following program was agreed upon, as the start of a campaign for more recruits.

Both the J. A. C. and the recruiting station have planned a special observance of Navy day, Oct. 27.

Mansfield merchants, according to Eberly, have promised to prominently display U. S. flags and posters on that day in an effort to make Mansfielders navy-minded.

Plans are being completed for erection of a large sign in Central park, urging young men to join the navy.

The cooperation of the Sea Scouts is expected to bring a special exhibit to Central park, displaying Sea Scout boats, and other equipment, on Navy day, while the active support of the Navy Mothers club is virtually assured, Eberly said today.

In conjunction with national letter writing week, the J. A. C. is also making special effort to send letters, and cigarets to those now in all branches of the service, and to assist in the sale of defense stamps and bonds.

Road Squabble Brings Threat of City's Secession

GROVE, Okla. —(INS)— This northeastern Oklahoma community, virtually isolated from the rest of the state by the rising lake of Grand River Dam, is threatening to "secede" from Oklahoma and become a part of Arkansas—if the state highway commission does not build new roads soon.

Grove is cut off even from Jay, the Delaware county seat, and has access to the outside world only through Arkansas and Missouri.

Other northeastern Oklahomans are clamoring for action also. The people of Ottawa and Craig counties, as well as those in Delaware county are angered at being cut off from Tulsa, Oklahoma City and the other communities.

U. S. highway 59 is inundated at two points, U. S. 60 is almost ready to go under water, portions of State Highway 10 are flooded and a half-dozen important farm-to-market roads are now part of the lake bottom.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips declared martial law last spring in a fruitless effort to halt construction of the $22,750,000 hydro-electric project until road problems were solved.

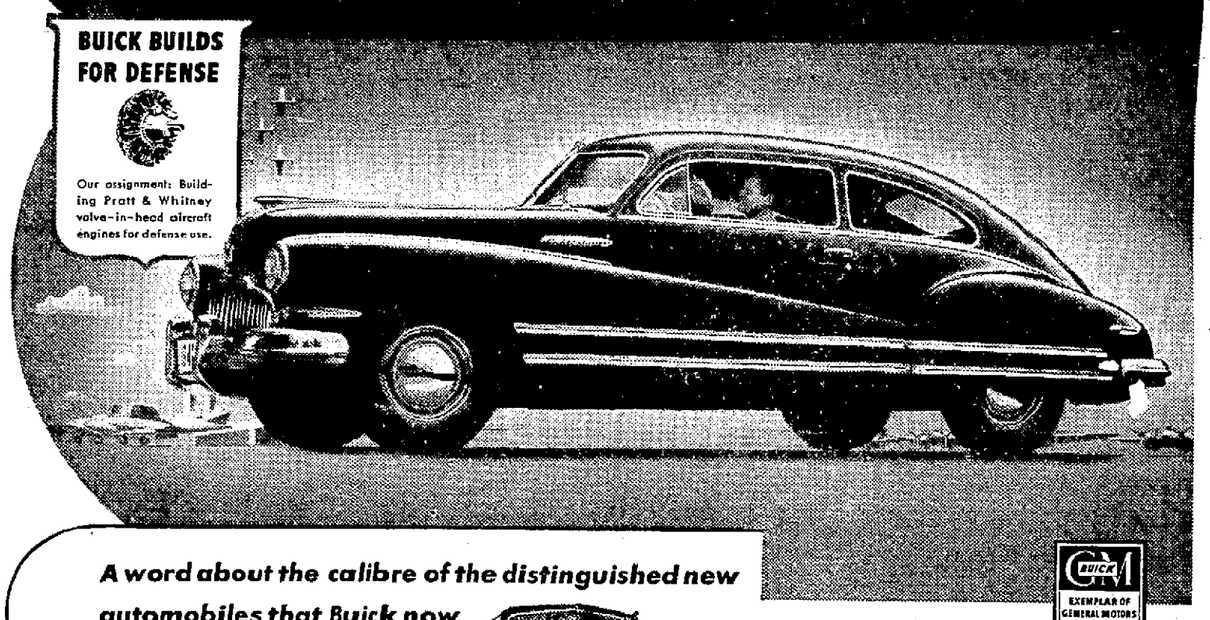
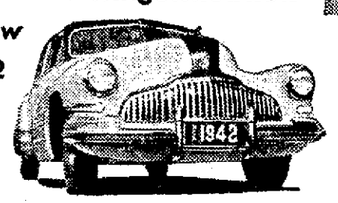
BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE
Our assignment: Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense use.


A word about the calibre of the distinguished new automobiles that Buick now brings to market for 1942



Two thoughts stood solemn sentinel throughout all the planning of our 1942 cars.
The first was: – in their materials these cars must not trespass on the current needs of national defense.
The second was: – in their quality and performance they must not be an "ersatz" product.
If you think this leaves only a cramped and stifling byway for engineering to advance in, remember that difficulties are sometimes the spur that real ability needs.
Our new cars, it seems to us, superbly prove this. But we neither expect nor ask you to take our word for it.
The real way to know what they are, and how marvelously they perform, is to breeze them down a country road or tool them through clotted traffic.
The sure way to gauge their mettle and their inmost goodness is to plump them squarely into the stiffest task your imagination can supply.
There are great gifts undefeatedly at work in the industry of this nation and not the least of them is good old-fashioned American ingenuity.
We have of course no corner on that here at Buick. But the first mile you drive one of these magnificent automobiles will make you say that we certainly have our share.
So come try the gorgeous new cars that we not only say pace the pack for 1942 but are bold enough to believe set an all-time high in all-round automotive excellence.
They will make you glad – nay, proud – all over again that you're living in America – and now!

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Each of Mansfield high's first three opponents has lost just exactly three games. So while the Tygers may be proud enough of their record of three straight victories, they haven't a whole lot to crow about until they beat someone who isn't accustomed to the short end.

They get that chance Friday night when they invade the Wildcat lair at Newark, and there's likely to be a large crowd of Tyger fans on hand to see what happens.

Newark is reserving a section of the new stadium for the Mansfield delegation.

Of Mansfield's opponents thus far, Akron West, first on the schedule, has the sorriest tale to tell.

After absorbing a 40 to 0 beating from the Tygers, the Cowboys trimmed three points from that total the following week, losing 37 to 0 at East Liverpool.

Last week they led Akron Central 7 to 6 in the last quarter, and the lariat swingers were riding hard, touchdown bound, deep in Central territory, when a lowly Central sub intercepted a pass and ran 91 yards for a touchdown. Final score: Central 13, West 7.

* * *

Oh sorry day, alack, alas,
The day the Cowboys flung that pass.

Well, that makes three defeats for West. Elyria and Sandusky are not to be outdone in this race yet, but one is apt to fall by the winless wayside Friday when the twain tangle.

Elyria has been defeated by Oberlin 12 to 6, by Mansfield 39 to 0, and by Lakewood 27 to 0. Sandusky has bowed to Collinwood 14 to 0, to Lorain 26 to 12, and to Mansfield 32 to 0. Incidentally, Oberlin has won three straight games.

Now for the rest of Mansfield's opponents right down the schedule:

Newark has beaten Columbus West 20 to 6, and Lancaster 12 to 6, and tied with Marietta 0 to 0. Springfield has taken Cincinnati Norwood 32 to 0, Columbus East 19 to 0, and Ironton 13 to 6. Massillon edged Weirton, W. Va., 6 to 0, and romped over Marblehead, Mass., 28 to 6, and Cleveland Cathedral Latin 39 to 0. Cleveland Central (here's a breather) has fallen before John Adams 40 to 0, before Cathedral Latin 60 to 0, and before Cleveland Benedictine 24 to 0. Canton McKinley has shown its heels to Timken 62 to 0, Akron South 26 to 0, and Champaign, Ill., 26 to 6. Shelby took Norwalk 26 to 7, was edged by Willard 7 to 6, and walloped Galion 37 to 0. Fremont galloped over Bellevue 34 to 7, lost to Tiffin Junior Order 13 to 6, and edged Findlay 14 to 13.

There's the record, read it and weep,
I trust it won't disturb your sleep.

* * *

They're in the army now. But that, instead of keeping them away from Saturday's Ohio State-Southern California football game, is just what gave two Mansfield boys the opporunity of seeing the Buckeyes upset the Trojans.

Ocie Hill, 763 Bowman street, and Raymond Richard, 823 Bowman, were packed in the special train load of soldiers from Phoenix, Ariz., who made the game trip on leave last week.

Hill is a former Mansfield high track teammate of Johnny Hallabrin, Buckeye quarterback.

White Sox Lift Chicago Series

CHICAGO—(AP)—Brooklyn has nothing on Chicago. This town has its own edition of the "Bums."

Instead of Dodgers, this outfit is know as the Cubs. The Chicago counterpart of the New York Yankees, who recently did great damage to the Brooklyn "Bums," is called the White Sox. The Sox have just devastated the Cubs in four straight city series games, and what's more, have been doing this sort of thing since 1930.

The division of runs in the

final game was three for the White Sox and one for the Cubs—all unearned.

* * *

The pitcher who closed the local feuding was Thornton Lee, winner of 22 American league games this year. He set the Cubs down in the finale with four hits.

NEW YORK—Izzy Jannazzo, 152, New York, defeated Low Schwartz, 165¼, (10). Irwin (Kay) Kaplin 155, Brooklyn, defeated Bill Corrigan, 148¼, (8).

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Gerves Young, 147, Akron, O., knocked out Al Shapiro, 149, Kansas City, (3).

Scout Sues For Movies Of Tigers

Warren Director Claims Massillon Copped Films.

CANTON—(AP)—Gridiron scouting with a motion picture camera has neighboring Massillon's Washington high school and Warren's Harding high feuding in Stark county common pleas court.

The legal row may throw some light on whether a school—in this case Washington high, springboard from which Coach Paul E. Brown vaulted into the Big Ten at Ohio State—has the right to ban movies of games played in its home stadium.

Warren and Massillon are agreed that last Friday when Massillon Washington got its 36th consecutive victory by walloping Cleveland Cathedral Latin 39 to 0, two rolls of movie film were taken by Donald Baker, director of physical education for Warren Harding, which will meet the Massillon team Oct. 31 in Warren.

* * *

And they agree that S. Earl Ackley, Massillon Washington's faculty manager, now has the film and won't let go.

In a replevin action filed in common pleas court yesterday by Bruce Henderson, Warren city solicitor, Baker declared Ackley, accompanied by six policemen, "unlawfully and forcibly" required him to leave his seat in the stadium and surrender the film.

Declaring this caused him "great mental suffering and anguish and extreme mortification and humiliation," Baker wants return of the films, $1,000 to soothe his feelings and $300 because the films are not available to him.

Judge Joseph L. Floyd issued a temporary restraining order preventing Ackley from "tampering" with the films. Ackley posted $400 delivery bond to permit the films to stay in his possession until the law brings about a decision. The court gave Ackley until Nov. 8 to file an answer.

* * *

The Massillon manager contends a "gentleman's agreement" exists among coaches, prohibiting the taking of motion pictures of games played by future opponents.

Paint Town For Buckeyes

Columbus Prepared For Returning Buck Gridders.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The beloved Buckeyes of Ohio State university return this evening from their surprise 33-0 football conquest of the University of Southern California to a reception that promises to out-do all others in the history of this grid-conscious city.

With indications that a crowd of 10,000 would be "waiting at the station," officials of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Ohio Staters club arranged to have the Buckeye football special backed into a spur in the Pennsylvania produce yards to prevent blocking traffic in the railroad terminal.

University fraternities and sororities have been busy for days preparing posters and arranging special demonstrations. The 120-piece Ohio State marching band, which could not make the trip to the coast, will have a prominent part in the welcoming hullabaloo.

The official program will take 20 minutes with Coach Paul E. Brown and Captain Jack Stephenson of the football squad making the only speeches.

Buckeye cheerleaders will be on hand to direct the crowd in mass cheering and 12 city policemen have been assigned to preserve order.

TROY—(AP)—Sixty teams, including five state champions, will compete in the world championship horse pulling contest at Troy fairground Sunday, Ray Hennesey of Bellefontaine secretary of the Horse Pulling Association of Ohio said today.

IN FUTURE RUBBER BOWL TO USE HARMLESS LIME

AKRON—(AP)—A whiting "so harmless you can spread it on bread and eat it like pam," will be used to mark the Akron Rubber Bowl field in the future, B. E. Fulton, Bowl manager, says lime used to mark the field for a footbal game last Friday burned a dozen players and damaged uniforms of the Bowling Green university and Akron university squads, the coaches reported.

Streitmater Hits for 599

Shafer Rolls 222 For High Tappan Game.

Jake Streitmater led the league that rolls in code, the Tappan Stove bowling league, last night at Colony alleys with a 599 total of 212-179-208.

The code? Take a look at the team names. Only Tappan employes know what they mean. But all bowlers know that Jake's 599 is just one pin short of the coveted 600.

W. Shafer turned in high game of 222 after rolling 122 and 133. And Harrod had a 220 game in his second high total of 560.

MACPHAIL REPORTS BUMS' TREASURY FINALLY EVEN

NEW YORK—(INS)—Larry MacPhail, who took over the Brooklyn Dodgers four years ago when the club was in debt for over a half million dollars, today announced that the team was "out of the red."

"The Brooklyn Dodgers no longer owe the Brooklyn Trust company, or anybody else, a single cent," the red haired dynamo declared. "We're not only entirely free from debt, but have a comfortable sum of money deposited in the bank."

Movies of Buck-Trojan Tilt Show Good Fundamental Play

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Notes on movies of Ohio State-Southern California football game shown newsmen yesterday by Fritz Mackey, assistant Buckeye coach who arrived in Columbus ahead of the team after watching the 33 to 0 walkaway at Los Angeles:

The thing that stood out was the hard tackling, good blocking and vicious charging of the Buckeyes. The Ohio State forward wall out-charged the Trojans from start to finish.

The three clipping penalties called against Ohio State were shown clearly in the films.

"We aren't that good and Southern Cal isn't that bad," Mackey said as he ran the pictures.

* * *

Mackey said that when the officials warned the Trojans about taking too much time in the huddle, Right Half Bill Bledsoe was reported to have answered:

"Well, you see Ref, I'm Indian and so are some of the other fellows. So we're thinking of using smoke signals and we're just looking around for some wood."

Little Les Horvath, 165-pound right halfback, turned in one of the best individual performances of the game. In addition to his amazing running, he threw some timely blocks.

"He made some pass catches that were simply sensational," Mackey said.

After the Bucks had scored a couple touchdowns, Mackey said some of the wiseacres in the stands started to yell, "Touch all the bases."

Virtually everything the Bucks tried, worked smoothly. The films left no doubt about the fine quarterbacking job of Johnny Hallabrin. The Mansfield senior mixed up the plays so skillfully that the Trojans never had a chance to set up their defense.

Bob Shaw, 221-pound sophomore end from Fremont, ran like a halfback after catching Jack Graf's pass for Ohio State's third touchdown.

* * *

Trojan supporters were giving the Bucks two touchdowns on the pre-game betting, Mackey said.

Wooster Depends on Sophs Against Denison

DIEDRICK, FERRIS, STONEBURNER, BINGAMAN, HORVATH, SMELTZ

When Coach Johnny Swigart takes his Wooster Scots to Granville this coming Saturday, to stop the march of the Big Red of Denison, half a dozen sophomores pictured here will find themselves in the midst of this important Ohio conference melee. Two of these new Scots are likely to get starting assignments, Roger Stoneburner, of Wooster, at end, and Mike Horvath, of Mansfield, at guard. Stoneburner has been nursing a bad ankle, sustained in scrimmage last week, but Scot coaches hope he will be ready. Elgin Deidrick, of Lorain, will see plenty of action at end as will John Smoltz, of Cleveland Heights, at tackle. Bill Bingaman, of Janesville, Wis., and Curzon Ferris, of Sayre, Pa., are a pair of reserve tackles.

Four Shutouts Rolled In Loop

Only Two Matches Won By 2 to 1 Margin.

Four of the six matches in the Transportation bowling league resulted in shutouts last night at Colony alleys as three and nothing wins were chalked up by Sons of Herman, Page Dairy, Jake Miller's and Williams Transfer.

* * *

High team total was registered by Williams Transfer with 2,532, but Jake Miller's crashed through with high game of 935 as Huck, Aston and Stirtzinger hit over the 300 mark.

* * *

Brennon of the C.C.C. quintet scored high individual total of 623 on games of 213-217-193, while C. Forsythe of Schenk Auto Refinishing had the league's only other 600 total, a 616 on 213-190-213.

Brennon's 217 was high game.

Joe Louis Starts Army Show Trip

CHICAGO—(INS)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis today opened an exhibition tour of army camps in the Sixth corps area, heading first for Camp Grant, Ill., for two rounds of boxing this afternoon.

* * *

"I want to do everything I can to help Uncle Sam's soldiers," said Joe before his departure. "I realize they like entertainment and cannot have too much for the good of the morale of the army. I am anxious to do my part."

* * *

Joe said he didn't know just when he would become a soldier, but in the meantime, he considers it an honor to be permitted to show his stuff in army camps.

DAYTON PREPARES SUICIDE

DAYTON—(INS)—The University of Dayton today pointed to excellent morale as it practiced for its "suicide" effort against Tennessee Saturday. A special train will transport Dayton fans to Knoxville for the game.

Wildcats Play Badgers Next

Northwestern Favored To Wallop Wisconsin.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A week ago Saturday's clash between Wisconsin and Northwestern was awaited as an interesting match of two well-rated Big Ten teams. This was before (1) Northwestern defeated Kansas State 51 to 3, and (2) Wisconsin lost to Marquette, 28 to 7.

* * *

Now the Badgers enter this week's tilt with a "team-that-was-to-have-been" complex.

Sad as Wisconsin followers were at the bad turn of Badger fortunes, their hopes for a good year could be built up again by a victory over the Wildcats. After N. U., Wisconsin will meet once-beaten Iowa and twice-beaten Indiana before heading into a tough November slate against Ohio State, Purdue and Minnesota.

Northwestern, on the other hand, must follow up its game with Wisconsin against ranking contenders—Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota before ending its year against Indiana and Illinois.

Notre Dame and Indiana both are worrying about pass defense. The Irish will meet Georgia Tech this week and the Hoosiers will play Texas Christian.

Ohio State and Purdue, opponents a week from Saturday, both are idle this week-end.

Illinois is pepped up over its clash with Minnesota this week as a result of a 45 to 0 opening win over Miami university. The Gopher coach, Bernie Bierman, scouted the Illini last Saturday and said he "shuddered to think what they may do if they can make three touchdowns by passing in this kind of weather." The game was played in the rain.

Bierman's immediate problem, in addition to pass defense, is increasing his supply of halfbacks and getting some speed out of his linemen.

Tire Bowlers Apologize as Colonel Fails to Get Strike

Mansfield Tire bowlers, who opened their season last night at Colony alleys, were apologizing today for their vice president, "Colonel" P. H. Ober, who rolled out the first ball in the lid-lifting ceremonies.

* * *

"Due to the fact that he had been unable to practice," said a communique from the Tire bowling front, "Col. Ober was able to get only nine pins on that first ball. He should have done better. He's only 87 years old."

* * *

Bill Fenn took high individual total for the opening night with 606 on strings of 205-187-214, and Dick Metcalf had high game of 220.

Main Office chalked up high team total of 2,524 on 778-865-879.

Band to Make Newark Trip

Downtown Coaches Send Musicians To Game.

Mansfield fans won't have a special section at Newark stadium Friday night for the Tyger-Wildcat football game, the Mansfield Downtown Coaches association was notified today, because of the fact that all seats sold for the Newark games are general admission.

However, it's likely that most of the Mansfield crowd will be on one side of the field and most of the Newark crowd on the other. George Sherman, in charge of ticket sales at Mansfield high school, has sent a number of adult tickets for the Newark game to the Athletic Supply store for advance sale. Fans who want to avoid a rush at the gate should buy their tickets here.

The Downtown Coaches are arranging to send the high school band to Newark in a special bus, while another bus will take high school students.

Tickets for the Newark game will also be on sale tonight at the meeting of the Downtown Coaches at the high school gym, when movies of the Mansfield-Elyria game will be shown, and coaches will discuss the game played thus far and plans for the Newark tilt. The public is invited to this session.

Efforts are now being made to reserve a section of seats at the Mansfield-Massillon game at Massillon Oct. 24 for Tyger fans. Officers of the Downtown Coaches said today they expected an allotment of 2,000 tickets to be sent here for the Tyger-Tiger scrap.

* * *

Tickets for the Massillon game have not yet arrived, but fans may place their order for tickets now by calling Sherman at the high school vocational department.

5th Annual County Dog Show Slated

The fifth annual North Central Ohio dog show sponsored by the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association will be held at the Richland county fairgrounds here next Sunday.

* * *

Starting at 1 p. m., the show will offer judging for pointers, setters, springers, cockers, coon hunters, beagles and fox hounds.

* * *

Judging will be in three classes, puppy class, under one year; derby class, under two years; and all age class, over two years.

Shelby Meets Ashland Next

Both Teams Will Defend Unbeaten, Untied Records.

SHELBY — There's going to be one less unbeaten and untied grid team in the North Central Ohio league Saturday afternoon.

On that day Shelby's Whippets and the Ashland high school grid team will meet here to decide the league leader.

* * *

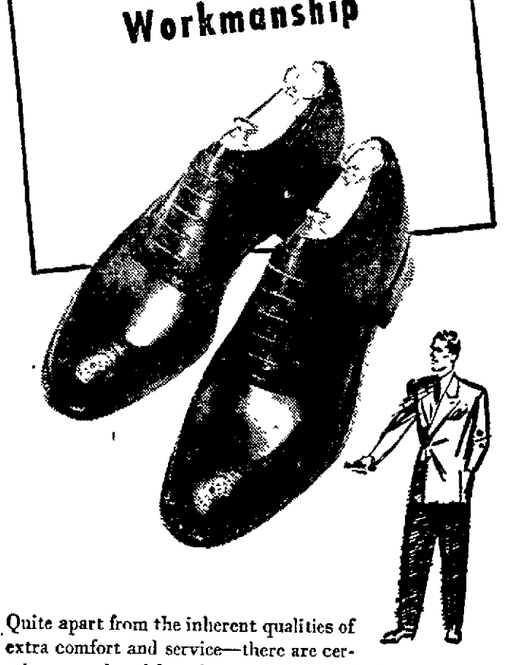
Both teams have won one conference game—Shelby walloped Galion 37-0 last Friday while Ashland took over Bucyrus 21-0 Monday night.

Coaches reports show that both teams weigh approximately the same, but Shelby claims give the Whippets a speedier backfield.

The game is slated to begin at 2:30 p. m., the first daylight game played by Shelby.

Only other conference game scheduled takes a favored Bucyrus team to Galion Friday night.

You Can Always Tell a Nettleton Shoe by the Character of Workmanship



Quite apart from the inherent qualities of extra comfort and service—there are certain earmarks of fine shoe making which distinguish a Nettleton from ordinary shoes. Folded edges, insert beads, hand-wheeled sole trims and other refinements of detail add character to the shoe. Makes good shoes look better longer.

THEATERS

Timely Drama.

"Sergeant York," the picturization of Alvin C. York's own story, that of a straight-shooting mountain boy who dislikes killing but turns out to be the greatest hero of the World war, continues at the Ohio. Gary Cooper plays the title role and the cast includes Walter Brennan as "Pastor Pile," who persuades York to mend his ways, and Joen Leslie, a newcomer, in the role of the mountain girl who becomes York's wife. The battle scenes, reproducing the historic event in which York captured 132 Germans almost single-handedly, are second to none in screen annals.

Calloway Band.

Cab Calloway's Cotton club revue continues at the Madison today featuring the king of Hi-de-Ho and his aggregation of 15 bandsmen and entertainers. James Gleason and Edward Brophy are prominently cast. "Two Latins From Manhattan," with Joan Davis and Jinx Falkenburg opens Thursday with "Forty Thousand Horsemen," sharing the bill.

* * *

Herbert Comedy.

Susan Peters and James Corner play the romanticists. Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie are teamed in "Repent At Leisure," the second picture.

MACHINE TOOLS CLIP MINUTES INTO SECONDS

Detroit Defense Speedup Scraps Old Time Table For Production.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Airplane engines are rolling off production lines at a swifter pace than ever before.

The American soldier today is far better equipped than in the World war.

These developments may be credited in part to the use of special-purpose machine tools, whose value as a production time-saver long ago was foreseen by the automobile industry.

Here's what designing special tools for a specific job has meant to aircraft engine production:

A few months ago it took machinists 6 hours and 40 minutes to counterbore 280 holes in the crankcase or main framework of one of the airplane engines being used extensively by the American and British governments. Today the entire job requires only 65 minutes.

Not long ago seven machines worked an hour drilling 14 holes into each cylinder of a similar engine. Now it takes three machines just three minutes for the same operation.

A fuel pump liner with an oddly-shaped interior surface formerly was produced at the rate of three per hour. Now the rate is 13 per hour

Similar shortcuts, made possible by special machine tools, speeded output of Garand automatic rifles

Years ago it took 18 toolmakers two years to complete 80 rifles Today Garand rifles are turned out at the rate of 1,000 a day.

The American soldier's formidable ability to defend himself today also may be traced to specially-designed machine tools.

For instance

He can fire his rifle thrice as fast as the soldier 25 years ago

He can travel as far in 20 minutes as he once did in a day.

His tank is a swift-moving fortress.

His long-range bomber can carry a maximum load of 22,500 ton-miles. The bomb load in the last war was 700 ton-miles.

Time-saving procedure also have enabled two subsidiaries of General Motors—the A-C spark-plug division at Flint and the steering gear division at Saginaw—to place machine guns into production eight months ahead of schedule.

'CAB' WOWS 'EM AT MADISON

Hi-De-Ho King Keeps Audience Swingin' and Swayin' With Jam Session on Stage.

Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club revue are now holding a jam session at the Madison theater which has jive followers swinging and swaying in their seats and the addicts of sweet music clamoring for more.

Opening yesterday at the Madison for a two-day engagement the king of Hi-De-Ho and his aggregation of 15 musicians received an enthusiastic reception from an audience that waxed audible in anticipation every time that the maestro introduced a number.

Calloway added "Geechy Joe," to his gallery of musical portraits that include "Minnie the Moocher" and "Smokey Joe," and his impression of the preacher-man in "Yes Indeed" was one of the high spots in his own performance.

He turned the spotlight on his band throughout the program and gave Cosy Cole, drummer, and "Chu" Berry, saxophonist, a chance to turn on the heat in a display of technical skill that literally stopped the show. Pianist Benny Payne and the bass player, Hinton, were other shining lights on the solo roster.

Missing in the performance was the songbird, Avis Andrews, who is ill in Chicago and unable to join the show here.

The Calloway experts take the stage four times again today at 2:55, 5:15, 7:30 and 9:40 p. m.

Yankee Scout Lists Heroes

Picks Bonham and Russo As Series Heroes.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Joe Gordon, the Yankees' great second-baseman, was having his right arm pumped practically off at the champions' victory celebration the night of the fifth and deciding world series game.

His coat off and his tie loosened, Gordon could only grin happily as the invited guests congratulated him on his spectacular play against the Dodgers and his selection as the official series hero.

* * *

Paul Krichell, chief scout of the Yankees, the man who passes final judgment on promising players dug up from a thousand diamonds over the country, was braced solidly on the floor, sipping the rewards of victory and accepting a few congratulations, himself.

* * *

The writer chose a lull in the happy conversation to assume that Paul agreed with everybody else that Gordon had been the bright shining star of the play-offs

"No," he said decisively, "I don't. Gordon only did what we expected him to do We knew he was a great player The real heroes of the series were two pitchers—Ernie Bonham and Marius Russo."

* * *

There was a shocked silence for a moment while Paul's words were digested thoroughly. He noticed it.

* * *

"What did Russo and Bonham do?" he asked patently not expecting an answer. "Here were a couple fellows we didn't know what they would do Russo had a bad stomach and Ernie had a bad back. Neither had been in a world series before. And all they did was pitch a couple four-hitters and win games we had to have."

Edward's Coaching Safe With Pros

DETROIT —(INS)— Owner Fred Mandel said today that Bill Edwards, formerly coach at Western Reserve in Cleveland, would pilot the Detroit Lions pro football team next year whether or not the Lions have a successful 1941 season.

* * *

So far this year under Edward's director, the Lions have lost two and tied one in league competition.

* * *

"If we should lose every game," Mandel said, "Edwards still will be coach of the Lions . . . and a good one."

PREDICT GOLF GATE HIKE

CHICAGO—(INS)—Preparing to step down as president of the National professional golfers' association, Tom Walsh predicted today that at its present rate of growth in popularity tournament golf soon will be drawing crowds as great as those attracted to football and baseball games.

PRICES MIXED, STOCK MARKET SETTLES DOWN

Wall Street Shows Recovery After Nervousness Over Eastern War News.

NEW YORK—Prices were mixed in today's stock market in a slight improvement from yesterday's nervousness over developments on the eastern war front.

Group trends were lacking near the second hour.

Traders scanned for indications of business conditions the "Engineering News-Record" report that September engineering construction awards were 40 per cent ahead of the 1940 month at $514,251,000 but still lagged 3 per cent behind August of this year.

Another factor considered was record electric power production of 3,289,692,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Oct. 4. The increase was 1.7 per cent over the preceding week over the comparable week a year ago.

Some market analysts expressed the opinion that European war developments were making themselves felt in the market, pointing out that yesterday's drop, which was .6 of a point in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, came with Germany's renewed push against the Red army in front of Moscow.

Local Lady Recommends Jolo Highly On Account of the Way It Helped My Husband

Declares that he suffered from chronic constipation which made him have dizzy spells and spots before his eyes. Thanks Jolo for giving grand results.

MRS. WM. WILBURN

"I want to tell you how well Jolo has been helping my husband," said Mrs. William Wilburn, 233 East Southern Avenue, Springfield, Ohio

"My husband had no desire to eat and as a result, he felt depressed and lacking in energy. I am a good cook and I fixed every kind of food he mentioned but he had no appetite for it. His stomach wasn't right and if he forced down a little food, it turned as sour as vinegar in his stomach. If he took two or three bites, his stomach bloated and he had occasionel headaches and heartburn and a full, heavy feeling in his stomach. The gas caused shortness of breath. He quit drinking Cocoa and changed his brand of cigarets to try to get a little relief. Some nights he slept well and other nights he slept poorly. When he wasn't eating right, there was a slight weakness and numbness in his legs and arms.

My husband has been taking Jolo lately and now he certainly eats better and feels better and he has a world of new energy. The weakness and numbness have left his arms and legs. He sleeps better and is getting fine relief from gas, sourness and constipation which was due to all of his above troubles. His appetite has picked up wonderfully and his headaches are gone. I will recommend Jolo highly on account of the way this medicine has helped my husband. He will continue to take a few more bottles of Jolo and besides I also have had him take Liverine in connection with Jolo. Liverine is also proving an effective medicine for my husband.
